AMERICANS FLEE FROM CHINESE REVOLT

QUIET PREVAILS IN HAITI; ADDITIONAL MARINES IN CHARGE

American Women And Children Flee To Safety

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 9.—Although an undercurrent of uneasiness was still felt, quiet prevailed throughout this republic today.

Practically all American women and children residing at Aux Cayes, where five natives were killed and twenty wounded in a clash between U. S. marines and rioting strikers on Friday, arrived here early today aboard the steamer Martinique.

With them were American women and children who had been picked up by the ship at Jérémie.

The U. S. S. Wright, now en route from Norfolk, Va., with a contingent of 600 marines, was expected to arrive here today to reinforce the marine detachments already enforcing martial law in the principal cities of this island.

The cruiser Galveston arrived at Jérémie yesterday morning, its usual complement of 300 officers and men, including fifty marines, being the first addition to the 700 marines already preserving order on the island.

The Galveston made a quick run from the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, after a request had been received at the naval base from Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner in Haiti, asking reinforcements.

The Galveston was ordered to Jérémie because of reports that many natives in that vicinity were heavily armed with weapons supposed to have come from Guatemala.

A feeling of security was noted among the general populace here and in other Haitian cities soon after it was learned that President Hoover had taken immediate action to restore order on this island.

The Haitian national guard was able to preserve order today at several outposts in the Cayes district which previously had been threatened by angry mobs of striking students and workers.

Several persons have been arrested at Cape Haitien charged with agitating for general strikes. In this city, in particular, there was today hardly a semblance of the disorder which threatened to inflame the entire republic into an inferno of tropical revolution.

The strike of customs employees was virtually at an end. More than 50 per cent of the strikers had returned to their positions while there were any number of applicants for the remaining positions left open by the strikers.

Extreme tension is still being felt throughout the south of Haiti. Telephone communications south of Aux Cayes have been severed.

BURGLARS FLEE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 9.—Burglars, who early yesterday removed a cash from the basement window of Postmaster F. W. Rowe's store at Zora, twelve miles north of here, were frightened away before they could obtain any loot by Mrs. Rowe when she went to the store at 2 a. m., to place fuel on a fire.

FRENCH DEBT PACT SETTLEMENT WILL MEET OPPOSITION

Administration To Insist On Speedy Passage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The administration will inaugurate a campaign for congressional ratification of the Mellon-Berenger pact settling France's four billion dollar war debt to the United States on a 50 per cent basis in the face of stiff opposition, it was announced today.

The first step in the legislative movement will be a hearing by the house ways and means committee tomorrow, at which representatives of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will appeal for speedy favorable action.

Although the passage of the ratification resolution is predicted in the house, which ratified the pact in 1926, opponents promised to wage a stubborn fight. Ratification of a second time has become necessary since France only ratified the agreement last summer.

The present great prosperity of France and the huge reparations payment she will receive under the Young plan are to be invoked in the effort to halt ratification.

Rep. Garner of Texas, Democratic leader, will lead the opposition.

"I have never supported it and I never will, it is unfair to the American taxpayers," said Garner.

Rep. Henry T. Rainey (D) of Illinois, who filed a minority report in the previous fight, assailed the pact.

"An examination of the financial situation in France will show her capacity to pay was never greater," said Rainey.

"In sixty-two years France will pay us in principal and interest about as much as she will receive in thirty-seven years under the Young plan. In addition to the amount France will receive in the way of reparations in sixty-two years, she receives in territory Alsace-Lorraine and the great Cameroon district in South Africa, adjacent to the French Congo.

"With the above evidence before us we are asked to scale the indebtedness of France to us by 50 per cent. If the French government should pay us according to the settlement we obtained with the British, she would ultimately pay us nearly ten billions. The sacrifice we made in the settlement with Great Britain was great indeed, but if we accept that as the character of a settlement that ought to be made with France, we would get $3,200,000,000 more in sixty-two years than we will get if this settlement goes through."

"The debt agreement is exactly the same as when the house last approved it, and I expect it to pass again," said Rep. Hawley (R) of Oregon, chairman of the ways and means committee.

"I shall support it, because Mr. Hoover, Mr. Mellon and I made the settlement," said Rep. Charles Crisp (D) of Georgia, who was a member of the World War debt funding commission. "I believe it will pass without trouble."

The settlement was made on the basis of France's capacity to pay and is a liberal settlement. It is a settlement at 50 cents on the dollar. In effect, France is required to pay only what she borrowed after the armistice. The statements made in France that we have tried to exact 'blood money', therefore, are without foundation."

The pact settles a $14,025,000,000 debt on the basis of cash payments covering sixty-two years, and running from $30,000,000 to $113,000,000 a year. The debt is to be paid by 1957. France may postpone payments for three years, the postponed amount to bear 4-1-4 per cent interest. Bonds shall be issued by France for the amount funded, bearing from one to 3-1-2 per cent interest. The total amount to be received for $3,340,000,000 originally loaned France will be $6,847,674,104, according to government experts.

BRIDE TAKES POISON

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 9.—Mrs. Dorothy Faulkenstein, 29, a bride of ten months, was in Mt. Sinai Hospital today after having swallowed poison, according to her husband, because he found her in the company of two men.

AGED DRUGGIST DIES

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Joseph Berger, 71, who was proprietor of the same drug store here for forty-three years, died yesterday morning.

GAS BLASTS TAKE TOLL IN PITTSBURGH SUBURB

Two gas explosions, one demolishing the Munhall, Pa., postoffice, and the second wrecking a drug store near door, have taken a toll of five lives and injured nearly fifty persons in the Pittsburgh suburb. Photos show, left, the wreckage of a street car, which was passing the postoffice at the time of the blast, and in which fourteen were injured, and right, searchers trying to find the injured in the postoffice ruins after the explosion. Leaking gas pipes are believed to have been the cause of both explosions.

GALE ABATES ALONG BRITISH COAST BUT SHIPPING SUFFERS

Believe Many Ships Still In Distress; Fifty Are Dead

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The furious gale which wracked the coasts of Great Britain and the continent over the week-end, taking a toll of more than fifty lives, paralyzing shipping and causing untold personal damage, abated somewhat today but a number of craft were still believed in distress.

The Cunard liner Albana, after a strenuous passage through the heart of the storm from New York, went out of its course to go to the steamer Tynebridge which reported its steering gear was disabled near the entrance to the English channel.

Many craft, partially disabled off the continent, were limping toward coastal ports. Several others were reported in distress in the English channel and in the Atlantic, north and south of the channel.

One 11,000 ton ship enroute from Hamburg to its dry-dock at Rotterdam was reported to have been broken in two in the storm. Eight of its crew were reported saved but at least two are known to have been lost.

Ten bodies were picked up on the English coast.

Twenty-one seamen were lost when the steamship Radyr went down in the height of the storm. Two sailors were washed off the H. M. S. Walpole near Plymouth.

The liner President Roosevelt reached Plymouth reporting a 100-mile an hour gale, mountainous seas and damaged upper decks.

The White Star liner Homeric reached Southampton more than twenty hours late, with her promenade deck windows, sixty feet above the water-line, smashed.

Falmouth Harbor was filled with damaged craft which had crept back to avert greater damages to their super-structure.

The Hamburg-American liner Kellewald, bound for South America, was forced back to Plymouth unable to log more than thirty-four miles in twenty-four hours.

The English coast and the coasts of France and Holland, as well, were strewn with wreckage.

DETECTIVES TRIED

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Charged with laxity in the investigation of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, gambler, Detective Sergeant John Cordes and Detective Patrick Flood were to go on trial at police headquarters today, with Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen presiding.

ATTORNEY DIES

CHARLTON, O., Dec. 9.—E. E. Moyer, 65, veteran Geauga County attorney, died here today after an illness of several weeks.

DYNAMITE BOMB CLAIMS THREE YOUNG CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Faced with a mass of unrelated information, police, under the personal supervision of Commissioner Grover Whalen, today began investigation into the explosion of a dynamite bomb which cost the lives of three young children in the kitchen of their Brooklyn home.

The victims, Mary, Philip and Rose Ralzone, fifteen, thirteen and eight years of age, respectively, were dressing to go to mass when a large brown package on the table exploded with terrible force. Mary and Philip were killed outright, Rose dying on the way to the hospital. The explosion rocked neighboring houses and was heard for blocks.

Joseph Ralzone, father of the slain children, and the prosperous owner of a marble works, had departed Thursday, telling his wife he was going on a hunting trip to Pennsylvania. He returned late last night and was immediately questioned by police.

The police today had unearthed the following facts:

That Falzone had received threatening letters within the past few weeks demanding money and warning him to get out of the country.

That there has been difficulty between Falzone and his wife over a woman who, police said had told Mrs. Falzone that Falzone was the father of a three year old boy.

And that Mrs. Falzone last June had her husband taken to a police station, charging he threatened her life.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS SLAYING OF TEACHER; DENTIST IS HELD

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 9.—An attractive young school teacher mysteriously slain in her bedroom, the arrest of a well-known Rockford dentist formerly prominent in Hollywood, five dead cats found in his automobile and a dead mouse found in his pocket, today presented a weird kaleidoscope of events to police who are attempting to solve the mysterious slaying.

The school teacher, Miss Cordella Gummershimer, was found apparently clubbed to death with an iron pipe which the slayer had obtained not far from her apartment. The imprint of a man's hand upon her body, a footprint on the bedspread and fingerprints on the pipe were the only tangible clues police had to work upon.

The dentist, Floyd Leach, 36, had been intoxicated for two weeks, police said, and was unable to account for his actions during that time.

When friends became suspicious after she had failed to answer a call, police entered the teacher's apartment and found her pajama-clad body propped up in bed. Nearby lay a two-foot length of gas pipe which the slayer had presumably used as a weapon, according to police.

Neighbors declared that they had heard a man and woman conversing in her apartment Saturday night — approximately the hour when physicians say she met death.

A rear screen had been removed, leading police to believe that the murderer had entered stealthily through a window.

CONSTABLE SHOOTS YOUTH IN ARGUMENT AT COLUMBUS DANCE

Officer Arrested; Father Of Wounded Youth Beaten

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—The condition of Robert Green, 19, who was shot and seriously wounded in a "dance hall" argument here early yesterday, following which a constable and his aide were arrested, was reported as "slightly improved" at St. Clair Hospital here today.

Sherman Cressler, the constable, and his companion, Albert Holdrege, are under arrest pending an investigation.

Green's father, Joseph, 51, is nursing injuries to his head, having been beaten by a mace and a black-jack.

According to the father, he went to the dance hall early yesterday morning to persuade his son to return home and find a pair of hunting boots for him. An argument ensued.

Constable Cressler attempted to interfere and Green and his son allegedly turned on the constable. A fight ensued in which Holdrege took a hand.

The youth was shot and wounded and his father was beaten about the head with a black-jack and mace.

A bystander was also wounded but he refused medical treatment and would not disclose his name.

Cressler is alleged to have fired the shots.

BRITISH CRUISERS SENT TO SHANGHAI; NANKING ATTACKED

U. S. S. Tulsa Takes Americans Aboard; Many In Peril

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Three British cruisers were ordered to proceed from Shanghai to Nanking to protect British lives and property from harm owing to the civil war raging near the Nationalist capital, it was stated in authoritative sources here today.

The cruisers are H. M. S. Berwick and two others.

PEKING, Dec. 9.—The revolt now flaming across the Chinese horizon has reached such serious proportions as to imperil the lives of Americans and other foreigners in the affected areas.

The American legation here announced today that seventy-three of the 120 American residents of the Nationalist capital, Nanking, have been taken aboard the U. S. S. Tulsa.

The Tulsa is now standing by at Ichang to take aboard Americans endangered by the fighting between rebels and Nationalists there.

Admiral McVeagh, in charge of the fleet of American destroyers in Chinese waters, is distributing his craft among the various Chinese ports now in the danger zones to facilitate evacuation of Americans.

The British and foreign governments are taking similar measures.

In Peking there is quiet, but in Nanking, stronghold of the Nationalists, it is reported a heavy

WILLIAM MAXWELL MEMORIAL BODY IS ORGANIZED AT MEET

Committee Elects Officers; Visits Site Of Grave

Senator G. M. Kamler, Preble County, was elected chairman and Rep. H. E. C. Rowe, Holmes County, was chosen secretary when the William Maxwell Memorial Committee, formed to purchase a site in Greene County and erect a memorial to William Maxwell, the first publisher in the Northwest Territory, held its organization meeting in Xenia Saturday.

Originally the committee was composed of three representatives each from the upper and lower branches of the general assembly but the membership was reduced to five a month ago when Senator C. C. Chappellear, Circleville, resigned his senate seat.

Other members of the committee are: Senator Robert L. Rohe, Tiffin.

Even when confined in the penal institutions, the Arnolds maintained that they were innocent.

"God knows I didn't steal that child," Elias said when he was received into the Ohio State penitentiary and his son was committed to the Mansfield reformatory for an indefinite term.

The Wayne County appellate court granted the Arnolds a new trial which started last Monday and ended late Saturday with the acquittal verdict.

Junior's testimony and public sentiment are thought to have convicted the Arnolds at their first trial. After their first conviction, Elias was taken to the Ohio State penitentiary and his son was committed to the Mansfield reformatory for an indefinite term.

FRACTURED SKULL FATAL TO AUTOIST

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 9.—A fractured skull, which he sustained late Saturday night when the automobile which he was driving crashed into a tree and telephone pole on the outskirts of the village of Barnhill, near here, tonight had caused the death of Charles W. Wolfe, 38.

Wolfe was president of the Bergholz Lumber Co. at Bergholz, near here, and was a salesman for the West Penn Lumber Co. of Pittsburgh. He was a World War veteran.

GARMENT WORKERS TO ELECT OFFICERS

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 9.—Furious debate over the election of officers by referendum and proportional representation were predicted as today's sessions of the twentieth biennial convention of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union were resumed here today.

Pressure of business, which forced holding the convention over into this week, was so great that Benjamin Schlesinger, New York, president of the union, indicated today that a night session may be invoked in order that officials of the organization may confer with Governor Franklin Roosevelt in New York Thursday.

DENY MISS BOW TRIED SUICIDE

Richman Announces Marriage Date, For January 1

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 9.—Attendants at Sylvan Lodge Hospital, where Clara Bow is convalescing, today disclaimed all knowledge of a reported suicide attempt by the famous screen actress.

Rumors that Miss Bow had stabbed herself in the hospital were denied by her nurse and other hospital attaches. According to the report, the star tried to kill herself because her fiancé, Harry Richman, night club entertainer, was rumored to have broken their engagement.

The report lacked confirmation at the hospital.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9.—Announcing that the date of his marriage to Clara Bow, motion picture actress, has been set for New Year's Day, Harry Richman, musical comedy star, today shattered a rumor that the Hollywood romance had gone on the rocks.

Richman explained that he plans to leave for New York as soon as his fiancée leaves the hospital here where she is recuperating from an appendicitis operation.

ACQUIT ARNOLDS OF HORST KIDNAPING; CRIME IS UNSOLVED

Authorities Think Boy Dead; Missing Nearly Year

WOOSTER, O., Dec. 9.—Unavenged and unsolved, the kidnapping of 4-year-old Melvin Horst, of Orrville, remained as much an enigma today as it was when he last was seen mysteriously disappeared from the streets of Wayne County village on the night of December 27 last year.

Elias and Arthur Arnold—64-year-old father and 18-year-old son—who were charged with "child-stealing" in connection with the tot's disappearance, were freed by a jury of eight men and four women late Saturday night.

For a week, the two Arnolds faced the ordeal of a second trial and the climax was reached when the jury returned the "not guilty" verdict. In doing so, it apparently did not believe the testimony of 8-year-old Junior Hanna, who, from the witness stand, said he saw the Arnolds entice Melvin into the Arnold home. Then later, the "boy-witness" testified, he saw Arthur carry Melvin to an automobile and drive away.

Junior's testimony and public sentiment are thought to have convicted the Arnolds at their first trial. After their first conviction, Elias was taken to the Ohio State penitentiary and his son was committed to the Mansfield reformatory for an indefinite term.

UNION ASKS PROBE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 9.—Support of all Youngstown labor organizations in a demand for a thorough investigation of the death of John P. McLaughlin, 46, printer, who was killed here last Thursday by a police automobile, will be asked at a meeting of the United Labor Congress here tonight. Typographical Union delegates to the congress asserted today.

MORPHINE TABLETS FOUND IN CIGARETTES SENT PRISONER

LONDON, O., Dec. 9.—Thirty-seven alleged morphine tablets were discovered in a package of cigarettes which was mailed to James McKirgan, of Columbus, who is being held in jail here for a purported blackmail attempt against Dr. W. D. Gardner, of Plain City, according to Sheriff Ed Blaugher today.

The package was sent to McKirgan by his wife, Mrs. Belle McKirgan, of Columbus, Sheriff Blaugher stated, and he said similar packages have been coming in for some time.

Sheriff Blaugher had been suspicious of McKirgan's actions for some time and believed the prisoner had been receiving dope, but could not locate the source of the supply.

The tablets were in one of four packages in which the cigarettes had been broken so that dope could be placed in the package and then packed with cotton so that the tips of the cigarettes were kept even with the others. The government stamp on the package apparently had been steamed off and then replaced.

No action has been taken on the finding of the dope as yet. The case has been turned over to Prosecutor Dean Richmond.

BECOMES MEMBER IF SENATE APPROVES; ACTION EXPECTED

Articles Amended So That Entry Is Anticipated

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—With the exception of senatorial ratification, the United States became an active member of the world court here today when Jay Pierrepont Moffat, American charge d'affaires at Berne, Switzerland, signed the articles of adherence to the institution.

Moffat was acting under the authority of President Hoover. The signing was done with almost an utter absence of ceremony.

This was the second time the United States signed the articles of adherence to the international court, of which virtually all the countries of Europe are members. The first time was in 1920, when the then American minister at Berne signed on behalf of the United States.

On this occasion, however, the senate demanded reservations which were held unsuitable by the other nations. Since that time, articles of the world court have been amended in such a manner that American entry is now believed agreeable to the United States senate.

The league nations of Europe have approved the changes in the court protocol, it is now believed. The signing will be forthcoming shortly.

The signing follows announcement made by President Hoover in his Christmas day address, when he revealed he would make the proper authorities to sign the protocol on behalf of the United States.

Moffat signed three documents. One was the original world court protocol. Another embodied the revisions made in the original protocol by the member nations, and the third set forth the reservations under which the United States agreed to enter the court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—With the signing of the world court protocol containing the so-called Root-Hurst advisory opinion compromise in Geneva today by J. Pierrepont Moffat, American charge d'affaires, on behalf of the United States, American membership in the court now becomes dependent upon senate ratification.

President Hoover declared in his annual message to congress that he would submit the instrument when convenient. In some quarters it was believed he would wait until a majority of the signatories of the original protocol, some fifty odd nations, took final action. Thus far about fifty have signed the amended pact but only a few have ratified.

That considerable opposition will develop in the senate when the pact comes up for ratification, was indicated today. Already there is some talk of attempting to amend the compromise Elihu Root, negotiated in Geneva last summer to obtain an agreement on the senate's famous fifth reservation, further to protect the interests of the United States.

The Root-Hurst compromise permits the United States to withdraw from the court in the event an advisory opinion is sought without the consent of this country in any case in which it has or claims an interest.

In making the announcement of President Hoover's authorization for Moffat to sign the instrument, the state department made public the correspondence which passed between the president and Secretary of State Stimson.

Stimson submitted to the president his recommendation that the pact should be signed in a lengthy review of the world court problem which in substance, if not in form, was a lawyer's brief for the world court advocates.

Obviously designed to anticipate and meet senate opposition, Stimson's letter to the president traced back 30 years the leading part the United States had taken in the movement for arbitration of international disputes; cited the original Hague conference of 1899, and emphasized President Roosevelt's instructions to Elihu Root, then secretary of state, at the second Hague conference in 1907, to work for the development of the court of arbitration.

GIRL ABDUCTED BY TRIO AT IRONTON

IRONTON, O., Dec. 9.—Police today are searching for three men who are thought to have abducted Cleo Hall, 17-year-old Ironton girl. Juanita and Beatrice Keating, sisters, who were companions of the missing girl, declared they met the three men at a dance and accepted a ride to their homes. The girls said the men had told them they were from Huntington, W. Va. When they reached home, the Keating girls declared, they were allowed to alight from the automobile, but the men held Miss Hall in the machine and drove quickly away.

OHIO'S FIRST TOWN BEING REBUILT FOR MUSEUM VILLAGE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 9.—Schoenbrunn, Ohio's first town, is being dug out of its 146-year-old grave and rebuilt into a museum village which may rival that of Henry Ford's at Dearborn, Mich.

The site where the town of Schoenbrunn once stood, is only a short distance from New Philadelphia. For years it has been fertile farm land. Now it is the scene of excavations which are uncovering historical data of life 146 years ago when the town was in existence.

The town is being rebuilt through the efforts of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society who hope to make it a "museum of pioneer life."

The "lost village" was located through the records of the Moravian Church at Bethlehem, Pa. Excavators started digging and unearthed skeletons of these first settlers as were shown in the records. Later a fireplace, believed to have been that of the cabin of David Zelsberger, Ohio's first school teacher was found with charred logs still about it.

With these discoveries began the reconstruction of the town. A replica of Schoenbrunn's school house has been erected, and plans made for a lasting memorial.

The history of Schoenbrunn dates back to May 3, 1772, when Zelsberger accompanied by other pioneers blazed their way to this territory and began the erection of a village. Five years later the town was burned by the Shawnee Indians.

Reconstruction of the town was brought about by state legislation recently. It is planned to make the museum village a monument to the cradle of Ohio history and a memorial to all pioneers of the West.

Movie Monotypes by RADIE HARRIS

1—RONALD COLMAN

Is eighth wonder of the world—an Englishman who drinks coffee. Childhood ambition was to be the man who sampled for the Huntley and Palmer biscuit factory. Now wants to play drawing room comedies by Frederick Lonsdale.

Always shaves off his mustache while vacationing to hide his identity. Discovers in three days that it doesn't work, and lets it grow again.

Hates answering telephone. Will allow it to ring indefinitely rather than answer it himself.

Is Anita Lock's idea of a perfect gentleman—prefers blondes for his leading ladies. Makes no limitations for his non-professional "heart interests."

Can't resist the "clang" of a fire engine. Always chases it to its final destination.

His Bath Song

Sings in bath and while making up. Is always the same song, "Do You Ken John Peel?"

Lives in style to which Hollywood is unaccustomed. Has only one car, a roadster, which he drives himself, and only two servants, both Filipinos. Never tells them what he wants to eat.

Dresses for dinner every night except when on location. Did sneak boiled shirt into valise when leaving for Catalina on "The Rescue" but never had nerve enough to wear it.

Shampoos his own hair every Sunday morning. Has never been manicured.

Has a gnawing desire to take a two-year yacht trip through the South seas and a sail down the river Nile.

Light Opera Fiend

Adores Gilbert and Sullivan. Has already worn out five records of "a more humane Mikado never did in Japan exist."

Hates charity bazaars, French pastry and the man who invented flashlight powder.

Reads every new stage play in book form and owns one of the best private play libraries in Hollywood.

Is still a bachelor because he is not yet divorced from his wife, Thelma Raye, whom he married in England ten years ago. The other reasons don't count.

Believes in the slogan, "Don't write, telegraph," but will allow his own telegrams to remain unopened for days, so fearful is he of their content.

Twice a Day!

Takes two cold showers every day. Is a matter of record that no "dirt" ever has been attached to his name.

Dislikes bridge but thinks a "royal flush" is pretty exciting.

Would smoke a pipe even if it didn't look well in photographs.

Wore kilts for two years during the war and still blushes when he thinks about it.

Detests personal appearances.

Was compelled to make one several months ago at the New York and Hollywood premiers of "Bull Dog Drummond." When asked to come east for another one in conjunction with "Condemned," his answer was, "I don't consider myself sufficiently ready for vaudeville."

WILBERFORCE HAS ENROLLMENT OF 600; FINANCES ARE STABLE

Wilberforce University closed the fall quarter December 3 with an enrollment of nearly 600 students of college rank, the largest enrollment in the history of the University. Of the students of college rank, the college of liberal arts and sciences led with an enrollment of 212, the college of education enrolled 150, the college of commerce, seventy-five, the elementary teachers' course, fifty-five and the seminary forty-nine.

Of this year's several innovations, all are proving highly successful, it is said. The grouping of all educational work under the college of education with an interchange of instructorship with the faculty of the college of liberal arts and sciences on the basis of clock-hour remuneration has insured the further financial stability of the university.

force is classed in group 1, a vast improvement over the Phelps Stokes survey of 1914 conducted by Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones. The committee on intercollegiate relations is doing much to foster contacts with other Ohio institutions of learning in the way of exchange of lectures, class and field trips and personal contacts with instructors in corresponding departments.

The "Million Dollar Endowment Drive," in the six months of effort, has netted $55,000 pledged and collected to date. Regular college courses offered in evening session by the college faculty beginning the second quarter supply a long felt community need and already the enrollment approximates fifty.

The college of music conducts monthly vespers services which are to surrounding towns what the community sings are to Tuskegee.

All student publications have been put under faculty direction and supervision, with the result that for the first time the senior annual, the "Forcean" will this year be published as a university function.

A debating team of much forensic ability will be host to Northwestern University in a joint debate. The musical groups have made several public and private appearances with the enthusiastic reception.

The Extension Department, with three field workers, renders invaluable aid to the community in giving farm and house help and instruction.

PASTORS, LAYMEN TO MEET IN KENTON

KENTON, O., Dec. 9.—Pastors and laymen from all parts of the northwest district of the Ohio Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet here for a one day meeting December 11, under the direction of Bishop Edgar Blake.

Included among the speakers scheduled to address the sessions are: Professor Edward T. Iglehart, vice dean of Aoyama Gakuin, missionary college in Tokyo; Rev. Guizari Lal Lorenzo, Muzaffarpur, India, missionary editor and superintendent of a district M. E. conference; Hugh Cynn, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Korea, and Samuel W. ## The Exclusive QUICK MEAL Radiant Broiler

THE HEAT RAYS from the Quick Meal Radiant Broiler are much hotter than those from the ordinary broiler. Nothing like this has ever been obtainable for home cooking before.

This new kind of heat is produced by flames from the burner striking fire clay radiants which in turn become white hot almost immediately. The radiants give out countless heat rays which are literally "shot" into the food.

Meats broiled in a Quick Meal Radiant Broiler are exceptionally tender. They retain all their delicious flavor. Every fiber is softened, all juice sealed in.

Get Your Cook Book!

With the Quick Meal Red Wheel Gas Range you receive a handsome 173-page illustrated Time and Temperature Cook Book which explains the proper use of the Red Wheel Oven Heat Regulator. Actual samples of cookery are shown and other information given, you will find most valuable.

Music Club Will Present Christmas Program

The Xenia Woman's Music Club will present an ensemble program of Christmas music, Tuesday evening at Trinity M. E. Church. The program, which starts at 8 o'clock, is open to the public. The program follows:

Part I

"There's a Star in the Sky" — Christmas Hymn
 "Shepherd's Pipes" — Harris
 "O Little Town of Bethlehem" — Miss Rankin
 "Silent Night" — Mrs. Hammerle, Mrs. Croy, Mrs. Williams and Miss Stout

CHILDREN OF TRINITY CHURCH ENJOY PARTY

Approximately forty children of Trinity M. E. Church gathered at the church Saturday afternoon and enjoyed a delightful Christmas party.

The church rooms were beautifully decorated with Christmas decorations. A Christmas tree was in one corner of the Sunday School room.

During the program the Rev. L. A. Washburn, pastor of the church, told an interesting Christmas story to the youngsters. Little Jimmy Stout, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stout, told a story of "How Christmas is Spent in All Lands," and Janet Chamberlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chamberlin, told of "How Christmas is Spent in Holland."

Jean Conklin, local reader, gave several readings at the close of the program. The meeting was presided over by Mildred Leveck, president of the Children's Missionary Society.

At the close of the program the hostesses, who were Mrs. Clarence Chaffield, Mrs. J. J. Stout, Mrs. A. A. Conklin, Mrs. Siders, and Mrs. Elmer Spahr, served dainty refreshments.

ENTERTAIN WITH DINNER PARTY FOR MR. SMITH

For the pleasure of Mr. Alford Smith, N. West St., Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Smith, N. Detroit St., delightedly entertained at their home, Friday evening, with a dinner party. Mr. Alford Smith is a great-uncle of Mr. M. A. Smith, and the occasion was his ninetieth birthday.

A three course dinner was served at a beautifully decorated table in the dining room of the home. Green and red was the color scheme in keeping with the Christmas season. A large birthday cake with a figure "90" made of red sugar and decorated in green candles in red holders, centered the table. There were fourteen guests present and five generations were represented.

Those present were: Mr. Alford Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, N. Galloway St., Mr. and Mrs. Elton Smith and son Burrell of New Jasper, Mrs. Mildred Miller and sons Robert and Allen, S. Monroe St., Mrs. Lois Van Zant, Xenia, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Smith and Mrs. Mary T. Lambert. A social time enjoyed following the dinner.

Luther League of the First Lutheran Church will hold its regular business meeting in the Sunday School rooms of the church Monday night at 7:30. A Christmas party and a gift exchange will follow. Miss Phyllis Mellage will be hostess to the league upon this occasion.

Warren Soward, Upper Bellbrook Pike, who underwent an operation here, last Monday, is improving nicely.

Miss Helen Spahr, E. Third St., will be hostess to members of Alpha Theta Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Iron Lantern.

Members of Aldora Chapter No. 262, O. E. S. will meet at Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Installation of officers will feature the meeting.

The Ladies Aid Society meeting of the Presbyterian Church which was to have been held Thursday afternoon, has been postponed until Wednesday, December 18 at the home of Mrs. R. D. Adair, N. Galloway St.

Mrs. Walter Wike, High St., spent the week end in Dayton where she was called on account of the serious illness of her brother-in-law, Mr. William Phares.

Dr. and Mrs. John Ayer, W. Second St., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grotty, Mt. Washington, Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Burro and Mr. and Mrs. James M. Barkdull, Cincinnati, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cox, N. King St.

Members of the Sunshine Society are urged to attend the regular meeting at the home of Mrs. David Lewis, E. Second St., Tuesday.

Mrs. Clara Trevis Hammers, Cincinnati, is spending two weeks in this city as the guest of Mrs. David L. Croy, W. Second St.

Miss Lucile Anderson, Jamestown Pike, is confined to her home suffering from an infected ear.

Mr. Morris, near Waynesville, had two fingers of his left hand amputated at the McClellan Hospital Saturday, after accidentally catching his hand in a corn shred der.

The meeting of the Junior Woman's Club will be held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Woodruff, E. Second St., Tuesday afternoon, instead of at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Lindaker, as previously announced. "The Novel" will be the topic of the day.

The Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Fox, Lansing, Mich., spent the week end in this city as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rader, S. Columbus St. The Rev. Mr. Fox is a former pastor of the First Reformed Church having been here about thirty years ago. He is now pastor of a large church at Lansing and they are enroute to Florida where they will spend the winter taking a few months leave of absence.

King St., had as their week-end guests, Mrs. Ungard's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnson, Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smith and son Bennie, E. Main St., were week-end guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Scott, Springfield.

Breaks World Record

Ruth Alexander.

Circling to an altitude of more than 18,000 feet over San Diego, Cal., Miss Ruth Alexander, 24, student of a flying school, recently established a world record for women aviators.

The record is for light planes, the late Marvel Crosson having set the altitude record for heavy planes.

Miss Alexander was in the air but one hour and fifty minutes. The exact altitude obtained on the flight will not be known until the sealed barograph carried in the plane has been calibrated in Washington, according to officials of the National Aeronautical association, sponsors of the flight.

Silk for America

Three vessels left Yokohama, Japan on November 2, carrying between them a total of 7,396 bales of raw silk for the American market. The value of the shipments totaled over $4,500,000.

Busy Midwife

Mrs. Eleanor Corcoran, English midwife, has assisted at the birth of between 7,000 and 7,500 babies. She started her work when she was 31 and is now 62.

YOUNG HINDU TELLS REACTIONS TO LIFE IN AMERICA SUNDAY

"Getting accustomed to this changeable climate is one of my most difficult problems in this country," declared Aubrey Bowen, New Amsterdam, British Guiana, in an address delivered Sunday evening before the largest Luther League meeting held in the First Lutheran Church in recent years.

Bowen is a young Hindu lad. Lutheran, and is enrolled in the arts department of Wittenberg College, Springfield. He hails from the second oldest Lutheran Church in British Guiana and is proud to state that this church has withstood the torments of the world for 189 years.

The young Guilanian told of some of the Lutheran mission work in his country and especially centered his attention upon the progress that is being made in the Luther League there at present. He voiced his appreciation to that organization for having made him to have a friendly and brotherly spirit toward other people, whether they were of his own race or not. Bowen's father was also a Lutheran missionary among the Hindus of British Guiana, and from his parent, young Aubrey saw the need and the possibility of Christianizing his fellow natives. "Public speaking and the real earnest learning of the English language were taught to me through contacts with my Luther League," averred the young student and he found numerous phrases to declare his appreciation to this Lutheran young people's organization.

The Rev. Harlow E. Haas, pastor of the Hilltop Memorial Lutheran Church, Columbus, and a former Lutheran missionary to British Guiana, aided in converting the youth to Christianity and later encouraged him to study in this country at Wittenberg College. Bowen expects to complete his college and seminary courses before returning to his native country to become a missionary.

Among some of the other incidents he related included experiences in an elevator (for this contrivance is not known in British Guiana), with the recent snowfall, zero weather, American slang, restaurants, cafeterias and motor trips. His audience sat spellbound while he told of these and a foreigner's reaction to them.

Miss Helen Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nichols, Burlington Pike, was in charge of the meeting. Miss Katherine Maxwell delighted the audience with a violin solo. She was accompanied by Mrs. C. F. Mellage. The Rev. Adrian G. Lebold introduced the speaker who is a personal friend of the young Xenia pastor.

HELLO, LEVI!

TELEPHONE service to the steamship Leviathan, miles at sea, was made available from any Bell Telephone in the country at 11:45 a. m. Sunday, when the service was commercially inaugurated.

The rate from Xenia will be $24 for the first three minutes and $8 for each additional minute. The report charge is $2. Service will be available on all incoming and outgoing trips while the ship is in range.

To place a call, it is necessary only to call the long distance operator in the usual way.

JUDGES TARGET OF BROOKHART ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Many federal judges should be impeached because they are not handing out stiff enough sentences for prohibition violation and because they are allowing their dockets to become congested with dry law cases, according to Senator Smith W. Brookhart (R) of Iowa, who recently startled the capital by voluntarily appearing before a grand jury and telling of liquor he saw consumed at a private dinner party at which he was a guest.

Brookhart was one of the speakers last night at an Anti-Saloon League banquet.

"If a court will impose proper penalties it will soon clear up its docket," said Brookhart.

The Iowa also demanded the resignation of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon saying he had not enforced prohibition.

TALKIE FRIGHTENS AWAY BURGLARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A "talkie" prevented a safe robbery in the B. F. T. Theater in Brooklyn early today.

Three thugs, intent upon robbing the safe of week-end receipts totaling $5,000, forced the two night watchmen, Edward and Charles Jones, father and son, into the orchestra pit and were torturing them when—

Suddenly voices came from the stage. Good, strong, bass voices. Repair men had been at work on the electrical mechanism which had gone wrong during the evening performance.

The bandits fled, they had evidently hidden behind the front seats after the last night performance and waylaid the watchmen.

It was the first time, so far as known, that a "talkie" prevented a hold-up.

COUNCILMEN BEING TRIED ON CHARGES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—Councilmen William E. Potter and Robert Bunowicz were scheduled to go on trial at 9 a. m., today on charges of harboring Harmon G. Atwater, "key witness" in the Coit-St. Clair playground fraud here, as a fugitive.

Considerable difficulty was anticipated today in seating of a jury for the trial owing to the wide publicity given the playground fraud negotiations and the nation-wide hunt for Atwater, who was allegedly on the "inside" of the deal, which has already involved a number of city officials.

One of the state witnesses was expected to be City Clerk Fred W. Thomas, who will go on trial later with Potter on charges of having had an interest in a city contract in the playground deal.

That's Rocky. In his own words. But it wouldn't be Rocky without his final sign off:

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

MR. HOOVER'S ATTITUDE
What President Coolidge said from time to time in the way of warning against federal encroachment upon the rights of the thirty-eight states of the Union, evidently found some permanent lodgment in the mind of President Hoover. Twice in those parts of his message to congress in which he discusses aspects of federal aid and of matters having both interstate and intrastate aspects, the chief executive warns against the undermining of state rights and "local and individual responsibility," which he calls "one of the most precious possessions of the American people."

Nevertheless, throughout a considerable section of the presidential document, the presence of a strong current counter to the perpetuation of this precious possession, is considerably in evidence.

In discussing conservation of oil and gas resources and grazing lands, and in dealing with the reclamation question, Mr. Hoover speaks of better division of responsibilities in regard to these questions "as between the state and federal governments" in a connection which rather emphasizes the federal part of the job. Almost in the same breath in which he warns against federal encroachment on local liberty in the field of social service, he says, "Federal officials can, however, make further and most important contribution by leadership in stimulation of the community and voluntary agencies, and by extending federal assistance in organization of these forces and bringing about co-operation among them," in other words, by supervising them.

Later on the President speaks of the appointment of a "voluntary committee of distinguished membership" to assist the secretary of the interior in a "nation-wide movement for abolition of illiteracy," of recommendations for additional appropriations for federal employment service to more "fully cover its co-operative work with state and local services," and for research work in the women's and children's bureaus.

Again, Mr. Hoover talks of the obligation of the government to contribute to the establishment of health education agencies in the state and local units. He suggests a continuance of the Shepherd-Towner act, and says, "I recommend . . . that the congress should consider the desirability of confining the use of federal funds by the states to the building up of such county or other local units, and that such outlay should be positively co-ordinated with the funds expended through the United States public health service, directed to other phases of the same county or other local unit organizations."

The trend of the executive mind seems to be toward establishment, or amplification and extension of benevolent bureaucratic agencies of "helpfulness" to the states—and some of them are for the moment very valuable—which, if put into operation and maintained must inevitably curtail local and state freedom prestige and authority, and perhaps in the end, submerge them, so that the words of the constitution "The United States are" will no longer represent the fact.

In part, the attitude of the President is a reaction to a strong natural tendency in the nation which grows out of the inextricably interwoven condition of state and national interests in several important directions and unquestionably calls for a certain amount of co-operation between the two in the handling of public matters, and occasionally for federal domination. But in part, also, it plainly is an outcropping of a strong instinct for organization and paternalism, which always has been a well defined Hoover characteristic.

In this, the President differs from his predecessor in the White House, who fought persistently against any extension of federal power and responsibility through interference in state and local matters, and remarked in addressing congress: "Society is in much more danger from encumbering the national government beyond its wisdom to comprehend or its ability to administer, than from leaving local communities to bear their own burdens and remedy their own evils."

It begins to look as though we might be in for a real old-fashioned winter in spite of the statement of the weather bureau that the temperature will swing back to normal shortly. By the way, what is a normal temperature for this season of the year?

Since the state of Pennsylvania has declined to pay damages to the owner of a motor car with which a deer collided, there seems to be nothing to do except start proceedings against the animal.

WHAT A MEMORY!
Introducing Alexander Dever—Doorman at The Bankers' Club—The Man with the Million Dollar Memory.

There are between 1,000 and 1,200 persons entering and leaving the club daily. One of Dever's duties is to stand within the portico of the coatroom to welcome the coming and speed the parting guest. Alexander qualifies in every detail for his job as swank club attendant. He is not as handsome as the handsome member. He is neither as dignified as a Supreme Court Justice nor as benevolently effusive as a professional philanthropist. At a Christmas party. There is a thin, blue line between the two that Brother Dever treats by instinct.

A month ago the author of these lines invaded the sacred precincts of The Bankers Club for the purpose of consuming some broiled smelts and discussing a business deal with Emil Scholz, the eminent advertising man.

Mr. Dever had never seen me before. He approached with elevated brow—not too highly ele-

THE WAY of the WORLD

THE THRILL OF KNOWING

The Classical League of America is to make a praiseworthy effort to direct the attention of the people of this country to the beauty and importance of Latin literature. The year of the 2000th anniversary of Virgil's birth begins in the fall of 1930. That year will have special observance by the Classical League. You may or may not care for your Virgil, but it is pleasant to hear in these days of "barber shop blues," hysterical guitar songs designed for the flapper trade, and books that go wild, that there is such a thing as a Classical League and somebody who thinks it worthwhile to promote learning that won't bring you a dollar or even a kind word.

FIXING THE EBLAME

Let's not blame the college boys for all that goes on in college. The official social director of Chicago university suggests that fraternities provide brawny bouncers to keep interlopers and gate-crashers out of their nice parties. And somebody else makes complaint that most of the drunkenness and disorder that have been pointed out in some colleges are brought on by alumni who return to fraternity houses on football days or other occasions.

PRINCE DIPLOMATIC

The Prince of Wales, making a speech in Bradford, center of the wool industry of England, says: "It is not for me to express whether women are better in short or in long dresses, but for the sake of Bradford's trade I hope they will be long."

PRESCRIBED READING

If school and school teachers could discover some way—as a few of them do—of creating young minds the love of study, the love of learning, the sense of beauty, they would be the greatest possible schools and school teachers. Talk to the average student about his courses and he will tell you about his "prescribed reading."

Who's Who and Timely Views

By CLARENCE M. YOUNG
Assistant Secretary of Commerce For Aeronautics.

(Clarence Marshall Young was born at Colfax, Ia., July 23, 1889. He attended Drake university and was graduated from Yale. Admitted to the bar in 1910, he began practicing law at Des Moines, Ia. In 1926 he was named director of aeronautics, department of commerce. He served overseas in the U. S. air service during the World War and was a prisoner of war in Austria for five months.)

AIRPLANE passenger traffic for the first six months of 1929 on scheduled air transport lines reflected appreciable increases over the corresponding period of last year, and the total number of passengers carried will probably increase by 25 percent during the latter half of the year, due to increased numbers of pilots, planes and airports.

Reports indicate that at least 3,327,003 passengers will have ridden in airplanes during the 13 months ending Dec. 31, 1929. Basing figures on reports from 227 out of 40 scheduled air transport operators, it is estimated that 45,000 passengers were carried by air transport companies operating on regular schedules during the first six months of the year. This means that an average of 254 passengers are being carried each day on established airways. The majority of flying activities, however, now consist of miscellaneous operations such as aerial sight-seeing flights, air taxiing services, and other forms of nonscheduled flying.

A recently completed census discloses that approximately 748,000 passengers were carried by miscellaneous aircraft operators during the second quarter of the year (April, May, and June); which means that an average of 8,311 passengers were transported daily by miscellaneous operators, or a total of 8,955 passengers carried each day in all classes of flying during the first six months of this year.

This figure will probably increase at least 25 percent during the last half of 1929 because of more favorable flying conditions and increased numbers of airports, airplanes, pilots, and operators. It is further estimated from reports received by the department that approximately 47,000,000 miles were flown by miscellaneous operators during the first six months of this year. According to time schedules published by the airways operators, there are now 92,229 miles of flying scheduled daily over established routes. Of this mileage 51,821 are scheduled for the carrying of mail in addition to passengers, and 39,108 miles are scheduled for the transport of passengers, express, and freight.

In order to further the increasing utilization and development of aircraft, the department of commerce is rendering every assistance to bring about a combination of four essential elements: (1) airworthy aircraft adequately equipped and efficiently maintained, (2) flown by competent air pilots over a suitably equipped airway, (4) in conformity with standard air traffic rules,

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION—

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

When Mrs. Evans, on the last day of her visit to New York, came for her last beauty chat, I said to her: "Now I'm going to tell you a little about make-up. Perhaps you don't like the idea of looking 'made up,' but you are wearing a powder right now that is much too light for you. The modern woman chooses her make-up wisely, and applies it wisely. Come over to the window, please, Mrs. Evans, so I can see your skin. That shade of whitish pink powder is very trying to your skin, makes it look withered. You need a powder with a good bit of yellowish tan in it—a deep rachel. But first of all, the right foundation!"

"The dry skin should always have a powder foundation to protect it from the drying, parching effect of wind and sun. The right foundation is also a real beauty aid, for it gives a lovely mat finish, and makes powder and rouge more clinging. There are several excellent foundations, but for you I would choose a delicate cream. I made of water lily buds and other protective ingredients, in a deep rachel tone to match your skin. Just dot it over the face and throat, then blend with the fingertips until the skin is quite dry and ready for your rouge."

"Choose your rouge carefully, to match your natural coloring. A cream rouge will be best, as it has no tendency to dry the skin. Also it is more natural looking. The shade for you is a rich red raspberry tone, and as your face is a bit long, apply your rouge low on the cheeks, covering a large surface. It will make your face more charmingly oval, and accent your eyes and make them brighter."

"Your lipstick should match your rouge, of course, and to take away that withered look from your eyelids, add just a touch of cream eye shadow in blue."

She stopped in to see me three months later, when she was again in New York, and even I, who know so well the wonderful effect just a little care will have, was surprised at the difference in Mrs. Evans' appearance.

"I feel like a new woman," she said. And I could see that she really was a new woman—all happy and shining.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, who died theother day at 85, after breaking all records for length of service in the United States senate, told me a couple of years ago that the senate's mentality seemed to him to have deteriorated in his more than a third of a century's observation of it, but that in honesty it had greatly improved.

He was speaking of the average, he was careful to say.

"Of course, we have a few members now," qualified the old lawyer, "who undoubtedly are as brilliant men as ever came to Washington."

"However, the general level certainly is not what it was before the constitution was amended—the days when senators were selected by their state legislatures. There were two sittings then. It took brains to get through. z z z

"At present, under the direct appealing successfully to mass psychology is more of a political asset than the higher quality of real statesmanship. A mighty effective campaign spellbinder quite often carries pretty low in intelligence when national problems are involved."

The venerable legislator was extremely particular not to refer by name to fellow senators of his own generation—those whom death had claimed in the long ago. He must not be personal, he said.

Daniel Webster was the most recent one he was willing to identify definitely.

He mentioned even Webster rather skittishly. Evidently he did not regard him as a purely historical character, but as something of a contemporary, remarking that he remembered his funeral, being eight years old at the time.

"He illustrates my point," said the senator, "didn't appear to know the meaning of common honesty, did things we would think a man ought to be driven from public life for doing in this generation, wouldn't pay his bills utterly unmorally—and yet no one showed a sign of seeing the slightest harm in it all."

"I don't dispute Webster's greatness," continued the Wyoming veteran.

"People simply had different standards in the mid-nineteenth century."

"Still, it shows what I mean in telling you that the senate's mental quality seems to have declined while the quality of its honesty has become correspondingly better as the decades have passed."

"The old oratory was superior to the present article, at any rate."

"Not that I am so sure that that proves much. Our ablest, up-to-date orators are not always our most useful senators. The best committee worker frequently is one of the least conspicuous among us on the floor—and capable committee work is fully as important as flowery speeches; maybe more so."

"I could judge more accurately how genuinely servicable those bygone so-called giants were if I had something besides their speeches to estimate them by—ib I had had a little experience among them in a few committee rooms."

Senator Warren could faintly remember Millard Fillmore's inauguration, he told me. He was six years old that year.

Senators Vandenberg and Dill were just that age the same year that the Wyomingian first took his seat in the upper house of congress. Senator Black was four, Senators Cutting and Bratton were two. Senator Tidings was born that year.

Senator was not born until two years later, Senator LaFollette five.

Only 39 of today's senators were old enough to vote when Senator Warren began his credit, compared with Senator Warren's 39.

Senator Warren had been described as "the greatest shepherd since Abraham." I'm not often enough to have grown rather tire-

Diet and Health

Polypoid Growths

"DEAR DOCTOR: What causes polypoid growths, and what is the best treatment for them? Polypoids may seem very trivial to you, compared with the other seemingly more vital subjects which come up in your correspondence—but they seem quite important to me, because they have affected my voice. I really feel I am developing (or have developed) an inferiority complex because of them. As George Eliot said, 'Will not a tiny speck close to your vision blot out the glory of the world?'"

"I have a young baby and it would be rather difficult for me to go to a big city. Would you advise a small town doctor for my trouble?"

Polypoids are growths from the mucous membranes, and are especially common in the nose. They are pedunculated—that is, they have stems—and are the result of hypertrophy or over-growth of the mucous membranes and their connective tissues. Their cause is not exactly known, no more than the cause of other tumors is known. (Any new growth, not inflammatory, is called a tumor, so do not be frightened by this.)

We know that the over-growth of the adenoid tissue and the over-growth of the tonsils in children frequently can be charged to a prolonged wrong diet, often coupled with pacifier and thumb sucking. Sometimes the correction of the diet and the observance of fresh air, night and day, and other measures to promote health, will cause them to subside. I remember reading sometime ago in my medical literature of a number of children in a charity institution who, when adenoids and hypertrophied tonsils. They were put on the operation list, but before their turn came, it was found the operation was not necessary. The correct diet and correct hygienic program under which they lived at the institution had apparently caused the conditions to subside. (Now this must not be construed to mean that one should wait indefinitely for these growths to subside, for they will not in all cases, and the damage that is done to the health of the child by waiting too long, can be very appreciable.)

Whether the wrong diet can be the cause of hypertrophy of the mucous membranes in the adult, is not known, but it is probable that it can; for it is known absolutely that the diet is deficient (especially in vitamin A) can markedly affect the mucous membranes. After polypoids have occurred, though, there is no hope for their disappearance except through surgical removal, either by the cautery or snare, sometimes by a combination of both measures. If one growth is present, usually there are others.

If I were you, Mrs. B., I would go to your town doctor, and if he feels he cannot care for you, he will advise you to go to some nearby city where there are doctors who specialize in diseases of the nose and throat.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have by following column rules, which may help you, although, as I said before, you will have to have the inferiority complex. Just think of growths removed. Don't develop an inferiority complex. Just think of the much worse things you might have than these.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Is handwriting and arithmetic important in this day of typewriters, and has the world any use for poets?

Following is the letter from the little girl who wants these momentous points cleared up:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am 14 and head of my class in spelling, English, history and geography, but I just can't learn arithmetic or pass the tests in penmanship. My aunt has a typewriter, and when I visit her she teaches me typing, and I can type 20 words a minute. But mother doesn't like me to type. She insists that I learn to write better by hand."

"And when I visit Auntie we play games together, and Auntie taught me how to write poetry, and mother doesn't like it. Mother says poets are a hair-brained lot who rarely amount to much, and that normal people can't abide them or live with them."

"And Auntie says mother is right, but that it is something to be glad about, as Auntie enjoys living alone with her cat. And she says the more she sees of normal women the more respect she has for her cat."

"Auntie lives out of town, and she has a car and an orchard and chickens, and she says poets may be half-baked, but still get a kick out of life. Do you think I should go on studying poetry?"

"PATSY."

There are times, Patsy, when one is glad they write a good hand and there are times when one needs a little arithmetic for the business of life which even a poet can't very well escape. Aside from that, people who write for a living, or even those who write a good many letters, nowadays, use typewriters, and their stuff is much easier to read than most even pretty good handwriting. So I think you can't go wrong in learning to type.

However, if you try hard to shape your letters plainly, because it is nice, as I said, to be able to sign even your name, in a good round hand. Your writing is legible, anyway, and with a little attention to lines you will write very well.

Now, as to the poets, we need "normal people," as your mother says, to carry on the work of the world. But, what would life be like without poets? Pretty drab, I think. What are the first words that come into your head when the day is so lovely you want to shout, or when life is more than usually brimming with joy? Is it prose? Isn't it always poetry? The more you know about poetry, the better you can appreciate good verse, and to learn to express yourself in correctly phrased poetry is a great art, so surely it is worth while. Learn all you can about it.

Yes, poets are usually hard to live with, and are often shiftless and careless, but we need them so much in a world that seems pretty hard and prosaic sometimes.

Cultivate yourself all around, dear, and you can't go wrong, and give my love to your aunt. I'd like to meet her.

RUSTY: Yes, indeed, dear, girls of 16 often fall in love very seriously, too, but it seldom lasts very long. They fall out again. The boy must have noticed you, or he wouldn't have taken the trouble to correct your language. Talk to him whenever you get a chance, and show him that you think a good deal of what he says. College girls say, you know, that there are just six words needed to make you popular. They are: "Do go on. You're just wonderful!"

MARVA ANN: I am sure your answer was printed some time ago. You must have missed that issue of the paper.

I think it a great pity some one did not prevent you marrying such an old man, but now that you are married and your husband is good to you, I think you should be faithful to him.

Of what use would it be to correspond with the man you love—or think you do? He realizes, if you don't, that it would not be right for him to make love to a married woman. Why not respect his attitude?

I think, feeling as you do, it would be much better to even refrain from sending him a Christmas card. Most certainly do not send him your picture. I think he shows his sense in not writing.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE FOOLISH LITTLE TIGER GRUB

Gently Biffer pushed Mother Tiger Beetle's claw away.

"I'm sorry I sung out loud!" said he. "It was a silly thing for me to do. But he didn't hear me. Look, the man is crawling on the ground just like we do! I never knew humans went on all fours like that, boy!"

"We never do unless we are looking for something," said Peter, "and, of course, he is trying his best to find the Grub Tigers. I hope they will stay in their holes."

"Don't worry," said Biffer cheerfully. "He isn't going to find one of your babies auntie! He is giving up the hunt in despair. See, he is putting his back away in that big black thing that he is carrying. What is that thing, boy?"

"That is a bag," answered the boy.

"What's it for?" demanded Biffer.

"To carry things in," replied Peter. "You're right Biffer! The man is leaving, sure enough!"

"In a moment I can run to tell the children the coast is clear," shrilled Mother Beetle.

Alas and alack! One of the babies had become tired of waiting for his mother and, thinking that the danger was over, had poked his head up over the hole. Seeing nothing, decided to come out and stretch his legs. So out of his home he hopped and started off for a little walk. The man caught sight of him. Snatching his hat off his head, the man threw it at the young grub, and covered him completely.

"Oh, my baby; my poor, foolish baby," wailed Mother Tiger Beetle. "It is too late to save you now. Why didn't you wait for your mother to call you?"

She was right. Too late it was! The man had seized the grub in his hands and was already putting it carefully away in a bottle.

"I'd like to do something to that man, the hateful thing!" said Biffer, wrathfully. "Why doesn't he mind his own business instead of coming up insect land and breaking up people's families like that? It is a perfect shame!"

Peter tried to think of something cheerful to say. Since he couldn't he did the next best thing and kept quiet.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

For the last two seasons Xenia Central High School has dominated the Miami Valley League in basketball, winning two consecutive league titles each year without the loss of a game, but for the coming season prospects are for a close, hard-fought struggle for the league basketball championship.

We will not venture to say that the Bucs will not again win the league title, but it will be more difficult. Xenia will miss Ralph Scurry at forward and John Gibney at guard this year.

It is difficult to predict the outcome of the fight for the court title this time. Many games will probably be decided by a margin of one or two points and the six contending teams promise to provide their followers with a supply of thrills this season.

An unusual number of veterans will be found among the candidates for the league teams and experienced material is plentiful at all of the schools, particularly at Miami, which has its team intact from last season and should therefore be a formidable contender.

Xenia Central has its share of experienced material but Coach Wilson refuses to be overly enthusiastic about the prospects for retaining the league title. Joe Smittle will hold down a guard post, Birch Bell is probably a fixture at forward and lanky John Hurley, an understudy at center last season, should fill the bill at the tip-off station.

Price is one of the outstanding candidates for the remaining guard post while Michael may win himself a regular berth at the vacant forward position. This is all guess work, however, and it is still too early to get a line on the ability of the various candidates.

This column is greatly encouraged by the response to its appeal for reports on Class B high school basketball games being played every Friday night. Much to this department's surprise and much to its delight the reports of four double-header games played last Friday night were received bright and early the following morning and if this custom will only be continued throughout the season the county court teams will not lack their proper recognition.

Bellbrook High School with a veteran team intact from last season, served notice Friday night that it is going places in county cage circles this season, despite a previous unlooked for defeat at the hands of Jamestown. Bellbrook scored a five-point victory over Spring Valley High, 19-29 county champs.

They also say that Cedarville has a championship quintet in the making this fall. Coach Baker has a bunch of players better than six feet in height and a rangy team like that should be hard to beat.

One Cedarville lad in particular is touted as probably the best all-around player in county circles. He is Bates, playing a running guard position, who may lead the county teams in scoring. Against Pitchin Bates tallied seventeen points.

Did Yale Players Desert Albie Booth When Harvard Won? Study This Picture

When "Terrible Football" Throttled Albie Booth

By GEORGE FINLAY
Sports Editor King Feature Service

SOME of those who analyze football insist that Yale's defeat by Harvard in their 1929 gridiron duel was due mainly to the fact that both the Yale line and backs gave little or no protection to Albie Booth, the star of the Blue Eleven.

And they submit the extraordinary picture above as definite evidence that at least on one play, after Booth dropped back to kick, his supporting caste suddenly found about everything else to do except to protect him so that the punt might be successful. Albie's effort was blocked of course. It was made in that poignant second period when all the scoring was done—Harvard winning 10-6.

The Yale athletes wore white helmets in that game. Look for the white helmeted fellows who were supposed to protect Booth. Then look at little Booth in person, as he is trying to make a kick that was blocked. Gaze upon these six Harvard men that had him surrounded. Look at the three Yale backs actually running away from Booth! Look at the Yale ends—and the rest of the Yale line. All of them trying to get down the field to get under the punt that never was made.

This picture illustrates better than any that ever was made on a football field the something that is called "terrible football." For the Yale team was so concentrated on getting down that it left Booth a prey to six Harvard men.

"Protect your kicker," is the fundamental rule of football. Undoubtedly it was taught at Yale in 1929. But in the excitement of combat the Blue squad forgot about it, and more than half of the Harvard team filtered through the apparently feeble defense of Yale and hurled themselves almost en masse at the little Yale kicker.

Sport Ritticisms

By BILL RITT

Princeton grad advocates revolving stadiums so that all will get an equal peek at a football fracas. Just as though the average grid fan wasn't dizzy enough.

What a lot of our schools (and Princeton is probably one of them) would like to see is revolving stadiums so that all teams would get an equal peek at them.

The report that Primo Carnera, the six-foot eleven-inch European dinosaur, would come to America in the DO-X airplane is unfounded. The DO-X holds only 169 passengers.

A football player is a boy who sprains his ankle in September, catches a heavy cold in October, breaks a rib in November and is perfectly healthy in December.

After looking over their battered backfields most coaches try to figure out a way of throwing a forward pass from a wheel chair.

Army's football coach is a captain. Next year the coach will be a major. By 1932 Commander-in-Chief Hoover should take charge.

GREENVILLE BOOKS STRONG SCHEDULE

From an available squad of fifty candidates who turned out this season, Greenville High School hopes to develop its first winning basketball team in three years.

The list of eligibles includes a number of veterans, Everhart, Smith, Hughes, Stemley, Engelsen, Bortram, Kelly and all members of last season's second team. Greenville's reserve quintet last season was one of the strongest in the Miami Valley League and players who composed this team are expected to be of invaluable assistance to Coach Stoltz in building a successful combination this year.

Greenville opens its season against Versailles Friday night on its own floor. The schedule follows:

December 20—Covington.
December 27—Fairview.
January 3—Open.
January 10—At Miami.
January 11—Fairmont.
January 17—Arcanum.
January 24—At Piqua.
January 31—Sidney.
February 7—At Troy.
February 14—Xenia.
February 21—Eaton.

LECTURER TUESDAY ON BEAVER PROGRAM

Elwood T. Bailey, lecturer, will appear on the program of the Beaver Grange Lyceum course at Alpha Tuesday evening, it is announced.

Bailey is being given considerable prominence as a Redpath lecturer, his lectures abounding in human interest and humor. It is said. Repeat engagements for the lecturer testify to his ability to entertain and instruct and the management of the Beaver program has received numerous testimonials as to his merit.

MEETS RIO GRANDE

Antioch College's Division "A" basketball team will play its second game of the season Monday night against Rio Grande in its first home appearance at Yellow Springs. Antioch opened its schedule recently by losing to Cedarville College, 46 to 30.

MOTHERS TWINS
LONDON, Dec. 9.—Mrs. J. C. Hanburg Williams, granddaughter of the late President Grant, today gave birth to twin daughters.

SCORING LEADERS OF THE EAST

Clark Hinkle, right, Bucknell fullback, leads eastern collegiate scorers with a total of 128 points, the result of 21 touchdowns and two points after touchdowns. Alton Marsters, Dartmouth's star quarterback, is next with 16 touchdowns and 12 goals, scored in six games, with a total of 108 points.

CENTRAL BASKETEERS TO PLAY WAYNESVILLE HERE ON FRIDAY

Four days remain for Xenia Central High's court squad to complete its preparations for the inaugural game of the season against Waynesville High at the local gym Friday night.

The squad was cut last week by Coach Wilson, who is beginning to gain a definite idea of the capabilities of his candidates.

Announcement is made that Bill

XENIANS WILL HEAR ST. JOHN AT DINNER HELD BY OFFICIALS

Five Xenia school officials, including Coach Walter Wilson, Assistant Coach H. G. Patterson, Principal F. R. Woodruff, O. B. Bogart, faculty manager of athletics, and James D. Adair, member of the city school board, will attend the annual banquet of the Miami Valley Officials' Association Monday night at 6:30 o'clock at the Engineers' Club in Dayton.

L. W. St. John, of Ohio State University, who will be the principal speaker of the evening, will discuss interpretation of basketball rules. Another speaker will be Merle Dittmer, freshman coach at Miami University, who will talk on the subject, "Plays of Basketball." Coach Floyd Stahl, of Stivers High School, will also give a brief speech.

Xenia school officials are attending the meeting in the belief it will be profitable to hear the new basketball rules discussed by recognized authorities. The dinner is open to anyone interested in basketball in Ohio and invitations have been extended to schools within a fifty-mile radius of Dayton.

ODD FELLOWS MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

Having completed remodeling of two buildings on W. Main St., purchased for a lodge home from Henry L. Binder and J. A. Norck, Xenia Lodge No. 52, I. O. O. F., expects to hold its first meeting in the new quarters Tuesday night, it is announced by Henry Slagle, chairman of the building committee.

The lodge will surrender its lease this month on quarters on S. Detroit St., it has occupied for seventy-eight years, and the building will later be razed. The lodge has moved most of its furnishings to its new home but the three safes and piano remain to be taken to the new location.

In order to form a lodge hall with dimensions of forty by fifty-four feet with a dining room twenty by forty-four feet and a kitchen in the rear, the second floors of the two buildings bought by the lodge were thrown together. A metal ceiling was placed in the lodge room and new wiring, electric fixtures and plumbing were installed.

PROPERTY FAILS TO ATTRACT BIDDERS

Because of lack of bidders for the premises at two-thirds of the appraised value, residence property located on Lake St., belonging to the estate of the late John A. DeVoe, father of Chester DeVoe, superintendent of Jefferson Twp. schools, offered at public auction Saturday, was not sold.

The property, which includes a seven-room frame house and two acres of ground, was appraised at $4,500 and cannot be sold for less than two-thirds of the appraisal value.

The sale was authorized by Probate Court in the case of Mary M. DeVoe, widow and executrix of the estate and the property is expected to be re-advertised or re-appraised.

NINE MICHIGAN U. STUDENTS IN RAID

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 9.—Nine students of the University of Michigan are scheduled to appear in police court here today as the result of a raid made on the headquarters of an alleged campus bootlegger yesterday.

The son of a prominent Michigan professor as well as several campus leaders are among those arrested. Authorities refused to reveal any names however.

William Morgan, 50, was placed under arrest, charged with operating a haunt for thirsty students.

AUTOIST IS HELD

DAYTON, O., Dec. 9.—Alfred McGinskey, 28, is being held in county jail here on a charge of manslaughter after the automobile which he was driving struck and killed Anna Walthemath, 50, and seriously injured her sister, Carrie E. Walthemath, 54.

The two women were struck as they were about to board a street car late Saturday night.

WILLIAMS FAMILY YIELDS OFFICE

Miss Eleanor Williams Retires As Postal Manager Here

TERMINATING many years of service in that capacity, Miss Eleanor A. Williams re- tired Monday as local manager of The Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., which maintains an office at 4 W. Main St., in the J. D. Steele Bldg.

Miss Williams, whose resig- nation was accepted with re- luctance by company officials, has been succeeded as man- ager by Hubert Spears, Ash- land, Ky., who entered upon his new duties Monday morn- ing.

A member of the Williams family had been in charge of the local telegraph office ever since the Xenia branch was established here more than forty years ago. The office was originally opened by the late J. S. Williams, father of Miss Eleanor, as a local branch of the United Lines Telegraph Co., which later became the Postal Telegraph-Cable Co.

Mr. Williams was later suc- ceeded as manager by his son, Samuel, and Miss Williams eventually replaced her broth- er.

Recent celebration of the Golden Jubilee of the incan- descent light at Detroit, Mich., was of special significance to Miss Williams, whose father during his lifetime was a close friend of Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor. During the early part of Ed- ison's career when he was em- ployed as a telegraph oper- ator Mr. Williams and the in- ventor roomed together at Cincinnati and Indianapolis. Mr. Williams often visited Edison when the inventor would return to his birthplace in northern Ohio.

VALUABLE ANTIQUES SAVED FROM FLAMES

Valuable antique furniture and bedding which had been advertised for a sale Thursday, December 12, were saved from the assistance of neighbors when fire, attributed to a defective flue, caused damage estimated at several hundred dol- lars at the farm home of Clifford Bull, one mile south of Cedarville, last week. The blaze was confined to the attic and roof. Mr. Bull is a descendant of one of the earliest settlers in that vicinity and many of the antiques in his possession date back to the Revolutionary War period.

CORN AND WHEAT CROPS BELOW OHIO AVERAGE

The corn and wheat crops this year were each 10 per cent below the five-year average for Ohio, ac- cording to J. I. Falconer, chief of the department of rural economies of the Ohio Agricultural Experi- ment Station.

For all crops the year 1929 was much more satisfactory to Ohio farmers than either of the two pre- ceding years. The composite yield of all Ohio crops for 1929 was 99.4 per cent of the ten year average, while that of the United States as a whole was 97.4 per cent.

The Ohio hay crop was 15 per cent above the five-year average, according to Dr. Falconer's esti- mates. Potatoes were 5 per cent above, and tobacco nearly the same. Clover seed, which has averaged 1.1 bushels per acre for the last ten years, is reported as yield- ing 1.6 bushels this year.

Prices with a few notable excep- tions such as potatoes and apples were no better than the prices of last year. Wholesale prices of all commodities in the United States for October were 151, two points below the rating for October 1928. Ohio farm products prices for Oc- tober this year were 151, three points below the same month last year and the average for last year.

SERVICE SCHOOL TRAINING URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The high percentage of failures made by Ohio youths seeking to enter West Point and Annapolis is expected to be materially reduced as the result of efforts by Rep. Chester C. Bolton to have high schools provide special training.

Bolton announced that he had been advised by superintendent of Cleveland schools, R. G. Jones, that special opportunities will be provided in Cleveland schools for students who are anxious to enter either the naval or military academy. The courses will emphasize the mathematical and scientific subjects stressed in the entrance examinations of the two academies.

Realization that Ohio youths were handicapped by lack of sufficient special training came to Bolton last spring when all twelve students he said he selected for appointment to the two academies failed. Inquiries directed at other Ohio congressmen revealed that the percentage of scholastic failures was high throughout the state.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON Of the Technical Staff, The Aviation Corporation (Written expressly for International News Service)

XXII. Cross-Wind Landings and Take-Offs

Perhaps the field selected by the pilot for his forced landing lies lengthwise across wind and is of too little breadth to permit descent into the wind.

A cross-wind landing hence becomes advisable. By banking into the effect of the wind which otherwise would cause the airplane to drift. Such landings require expert piloting and should not be attempted by the novice.

Should the motor trouble prove of minor character, emergency repairs may be made and the flight resumed. Here again the pilot had best choose the length of the field, ascending cross-wind. Cross-wind take-offs require careful use of the controls to prevent drifting or turning.

Cross-wind landings and take-offs are emergency measures only and should only be resorted to when absolutely necessary.

(Tomorrow's article of Plane Talk will discuss parachuting).

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, after the death of her mother, secures a position at the hosiery counter of a store. She is helped by Kenessa DuBarry, an actress, who has a soft heart. Rosalie is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, corner newsie. Rosalie takes a pair of silk stockings until payday, and is observed by Alberto Martino, hard-boiled store detective. He does not arrest her, but threatens to unless she hides some suitcases in her room. Rosalie is frightened, and when Martino's gang kidnaps Roy Andrews, nephew of the store owner, who has asked Rosalie to marry him, she threatens to expose Martino. Martino is furious, and in a scuffle is shot mysteriously. Rosalie is arrested, and Tim O'Hara confesses that he shot Martino to protect Rosalie, but the police do not believe him. Rowdy Dow, police reporter, and Kenessa DuBarry decide to help Rosalie.

Rowdy decides Kenessa must get a position at the store to secure information to help Rosalie.

Rowdy, at work on the murder mystery, goes to Rosalie's former room. While he is trying to think of a plan he hears someone climbing in the window.

It is Tim. He tells Rowdy he shot Martino and has returned to find the gun he threw down.

CHAPTER XLIII Rosalie was free.

As swiftly as the machinery of the law had moved to put her in the Moyamensing prison it had moved to give her liberty.

Through Rowdy's influence with official Philadelphia it was only a matter of hours until she was released and had been spirited away to a room at the Hotel Van Kirk, where she might hide from curious eyes and rest from her bitter ordeal.

But freedom was not sweet. Tim had sacrificed himself for her and always in her heart was the cruel realization that it was her own wrong that had brought all this unhappiness and grief, and perhaps death to the one she loved most in the world—Roy.

They were true—all the things she had been taught. That when you do something wrong you pay for it. The agony in her heart was as great as any hell her mother had ever taught her to believe in. And yet, she hadn't really meant to be a thief.

She lay on the bed in her room with the afternoon papers that Rowdy had brought scattered around her.

"ROSALIE MARCH IN HIDING." "NEWSBOY, 14, MURDERED MARTINO." "GIRL FREED IN 'HATE MURDER'."

Poor little Tim. There were pictures of Tim signing his confession. Of his father and mother and his brothers and sisters. One of his mother weeping and being taken to the police station for questioning.

Rosalie buried her face in her hands and wanted to die. She would have to tell about Roy soon. Only the warning he had received in the prison kept her from it. There was a slim chance that Roy was alive. She must give him time to escape from his captors. If she told her part of the story and they killed him she would feel she had murdered him.

At every little sound she jumped and sat up, scarcely daring to breathe. Perhaps they would find out where she was and come and kidnap her, too. But Rowdy had assured her that no harm could come.

She did not know that a city detective had a connecting room, locked on the other side—and that she was being watched every minute. It was for the fact that she was needed as a witness and was really not nearly as free as she thought she was. There was still a great deal of skepticism in the police department. Something, they were certain, was wrong somewhere. There was a great deal back of the murder that they were unable to fathom.

The Philadelphia Tribune was shrieking with exclusive stories in the Martino murder.

Rowdy, still under cover, was phoning his stuff in to the city desk. Shannon sat back, contented and in clover watching things hum. He had known Rowdy Dow would start things popping.

If he had known how much Rowdy knew that he hadn't told—the squelching of the truth of the story would have broken his heart. On the front page was a picture of Rowdy and the story of how he had uncovered the real murderer of the Boggs and Clarke detective. It promised greater surprises to come.

The other reporters were mystified. Where had Rowdy been? They hadn't even seen him around town for a week. They did not know that the tall, black-haired "lawyer" they had seen frequently around the jail was Rowdy. Only a few trustworthy officials had been let in on the secret. They were highly amused.

Rowdy had kept his promise to Rosalie. He had told nothing that she had told him. All that he had written he had found out for himself. And it was all beneficial, rather than harmful to her.

She trusted him with all her heart. He had saved her. There had never been anyone so good as he had been—except Tim.

She wondered if Neil had heard of her trouble. Of course he had. But he had not written to say he was sorry. Not one person in Rendale had come to her assistance—except Kenessa. And they had called her a "barlesque tramp."

Now she would be an outcast from the little town where she had been born and raised. She knew they could never bring themselves to forgive a girl who had gone to "the city" and "turned out wrong."

How many dozens of times she had heard them repeat stories of girls who had left Rendale, and everyone had been sure they had gone "for no good." Her mother had really been one of the first to condemn them.

Rosalie fell to thinking of her poor little mother. She was glad she had died before all this dreadful trouble came to her. It would have killed her, anyway. But—would her mother have stood by her and helped her if she thought she had sinned? Elizabeth March had been a very self-righteous woman.

No. She didn't believe anyone could understand. Except p. t. of course, people like Rowdy and Kenessa who knew all about the world and how different it could be from home and where you were brought up.

What would become of her if Roy was dead? She would have to go on living, she supposed. But she didn't see how she possibly could with the burden of uncertainty hanging over her. There was nothing to do in the lonely big hotel room but think. She felt she would go mad if something did not happen to relieve the strain.

Little did Rosalie realize how quickly things were coming to a climax. She felt everything had happened that could possibly happen. But later it was to seem as though they hadn't begun to happen.

Ann Schultz could keep still no longer. She had to tell what she knew.

Theodosia Goodman, who, more than twenty years ago, acquired herself in prim white dresses and attended Sunday School in Avondale, Cincinnati, is coming back to the city of her childhood.

She is coming to Cincinnati December 14 in vaudeville but she will be acclaimed by present-day Cincinnati as Theda Bara, one-time renowned vampire of the motion pictures.

Friends of Theodosia Goodman remember her when she left Cincinnati twenty years ago but were surprised shortly afterward to learn that she was the girl using the name of Theda Bara who was becoming so successful on the screen.

Theda Bara began her motion picture career at the time that press-agenting in the modern manner, was just becoming prevalent.

The city of Springfield was shivering in the grasp of zero weather, the supply of natural gas being cut off. It is not likely that this will happen in Xenia.

R. S. Kingsbury has received word that his son Robert, student at St. John Military Academy, Manlius, N. Y., proved a hero when he dived into the icy water to rescue the bodies of two youths, who had drowned in a deep pool.

Invitations have been issued for the annual Christmas dance, given at the K. of P. Hall.

MEMORIAL BODY IS ORGANIZED AT MEET

fin, publisher of The Tiffin Tribune; Rep. R. D. Williamson, Greene County, member of the house finance committee; and Rep. Charles Jones, Jackson County. Rep. Jones was the only member who was unable to attend Saturday's meeting.

Also present at the meeting were Kahrl Bull, publisher of the Cedarville Herald, president of the Ohio Newspaper Association; Dr. W. A. Galloway, representing the Greene County Historical Society; C. B. Galbreath, secretary of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, Harry R. McPherson, business agent of the society, and Horace Ankeney, Beaver Creek Twp.

Maxwell's death occurred in 1899 and his grave for a long time was supposed to be located on the old Maxwell farm, about one and one-half miles southeast of Alpha. The burial spot is not definitely known, however, and a committee of newspaper publishers has been attempting to definitely locate the plot.

Members of the memorial committee inspected the site near Alpha Saturday. It is known that the publisher was buried on his farm but eventually the grave location was lost and the memory of his name vanished for a time.

More than twenty years ago Mr. Galbreath, then state librarian, a man thoroughly versed in state history, began a search for the grave. His search took him to Greene County and on a farm now owned by J. D. Stone, Xenia, originally the old Maxwell farm and located on a back road off the Valley Pike in Beaver Creek Twp., the grave was supposed to have been located. A rough stone marker was set and Galbreath took two camera views of the spot and the old log cabin Maxwell home.

Definite plans for re-locating and marking the grave took expression a few months ago when a resolution was introduced in the legislature by Rep. H. E. Crowe, Holmes County, field representative of the Ohio Newspaper Association, providing for purchase of a site and erection of a memorial to the publisher.

The resolution originally carried an appropriation of $1,000 to defray expenses of the committee but this amount was later cut to $500. Believing that $500 is not sufficient to finance the project, the committee may defer any action until the next session of the legislature, when an additional appropriation may be sought.

It is the belief of the committee, expressed Saturday, that inasmuch as the grave has not been and may never be definitely located, it would be more satisfactory if a site could be acquired and a memorial erected at a location in Beaverly brought the first printing press into the Northwest Territory from New York and established in a log cabin the first newspaper, "The Centinel of the Northwest Territory," which paper has been in continual existence, now being known as The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. The original publication was printed on half sheet royal quarto size paper. Later Maxwell printed the first book in this territory, was the first postmaster of Cincinnati and a member of the first house of representatives which met in Chillicothe March 1, 1803. In 1799 the pioneer newspaper and book publisher moved to a farm in Greene County where he ended his days.

BRITISH CRUISERS SENT TO SHANGHAI; NANKING ATTACKED

barrage is being laid down by the rebels with government troops already beginning to retreat as the approach against the rule of President Chiang Kai Shek continues.

In the provinces of Hunan, Hupeh, Anwei, Kiangsi and Canton, similar conditions exist.

According to reports, the Nationalists have been put on the defensive almost everywhere, their numbers depleted by mutinies and desertions.

Chiang still claims the rebellions in the five areas are under control but reports received here indicate that the Nationalist leader will have to perform military and political miracles to emerge from the present crisis still holding the reins of government. He has refused demands of rebel leaders that he resign immediately in favor of General Chang Wei, former Nationalist president. In order to reinforce the Nanking area, and to attempt to recapture the strategically important city of Chang Chow, Chiang has been forced to withdraw 30,000 troops from Hankow, leaving that section virtually free to the inroads of the rebels.

Fifteen thousand Nationalist troops in the garrison at Chang Chow revolted Saturday, looting the city, severing railroad and telegraph communications between Tientsin and Shanghai, and making away with $75,000 belonging to the chamber of commerce.

The 30,000 Cantonese troops defending Canton against the Kuomintang and "Ironclad" rebel armies now pressing them on two sides, are fighting valiantly but being steadily forced back, according to reports received here.

Nationalist airplanes are being sent over the rebel lines dropping propaganda leaflets offering rebel leader General Chang Feh-kwei. Shanghai, according to reports here, is quiet. Five thousand Nationalist troops are patrolling the native part of the city. The foreign authorities are watching the situation closely in the concessions and are ready to provide adequate defense of their part of the city in the event of trouble.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—President Chiang Kai Shek today advised the Nationalist Chinese legation here that the rebellion in China was not as serious as it has been painted and he had the situation well in hand.

At the same time, he made known through the legation, that the Nanking government had approved the preliminary agreement reached by the Soviet and Mukden delegates on the settlement of the Sino-Russ controversy in Manchuria.

Nationalist reinforcements bringing the total strength of the forces defending Nanking up to 50,000 men have arrived, according to dispatches received by evening papers here.

Earlier dispatches stated the rebels were laying down a heavy barrage on the defending forces and forcing them to retreat. The same dispatches stated seventy-five British and American women and children residents of

AUTO DRIVER FINED AFTER ACCIDENT

A fine of $100 and costs, sentence of thirty days in the County Jail and suspension of his driving rights for six months was the penalty imposed by Probate Judge S. C. Wright upon Houston Baldrige, Dayton, when he entered a guilty plea to a charge of driving an auto while intoxicated Monday morning.

Baldrige was arrested Saturday night by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, after his auto is alleged to have crashed into two other machines on the Dayton Pike, near Knollwood.

Authorities say that Baldrige, driving toward Xenia, hit an auto being driven in the same direction by Frank Morris, Trumbull St., Xenia, and also collided with a machine driven toward Dayton by T. O. Treharne, Darke Ave., Dayton, son of Dr. T. W. Treharne, Zimmerman.

AUTOIST ARRESTED

Charles Ellison, arrested Saturday night by Patrolman J. E. Craig, is being held at Police Headquarters pending arraignment before Mayor Karl R. Babb on a probable charge of intoxication. Police are investigating a report that an auto, admittedly owned by Ellison, caused two minor auto accidents Saturday in which no one was injured. Ellison denied, however, being the driver of the car.

GOOD CROWS

Henrietta Winkler, of Joliet, Ill., writes me such an interesting letter about crows that I wish I could include all of it here. I'll give you as much of it as space conditions will permit:

"My first crow was raised from a pinfeather. I fed it bread and milk from a spoon until it was able to feed itself, and then table scraps of any sort were welcome. I named this crow Tom.

"About two years later I acquired a full grown crow from a man who wanted a good home for Germany. This crow's name was Jacob.

"Tom was of a very gentle disposition, loving and sweet-tempered. His face was sweet and placid, his eyes gentle and confident. The character of a crow is just as apparent in its face as human character is in the face of a human being.

"But Jacob! Villainous, impudent, with a countenance suggesting subterranean passages and dark deeds. Malevolent eyes, gleaming mockingly. And yet I loved him for his very wickedness, even as I loved Tom for his sweetness.

"Both were affectionate, although Tom was more loving to Jacob than Jacob to Tom. They were jealous of one another, and when they were being coddled they would jostle each other and pull each other's tails.

"There was little mischief in Tom. Plenty in Jacob. We had one peony bush with one lone bud, just about to burst into bloom. Jacob eyed it thoughtfully. I spoke to him gently, and said, 'Now, Jacob, that is the first bud we have ever had on that peony, so you mustn't pick it off. A look of comprehension flashed into his eyes, and with a vicious snap he was upon the unprotected blossom.

I spent three futile hours chasing him away from that peony, showering maledictions upon his shiny mine, and the peony was his. The self-satisfied smirk he wore the rest of the day was absolutely maddening.

"Jacob was my dad's inseparable companion in the garden, picking bugs and worms off plants, and yes, even pulling up weeds. How he knew the difference between a weed and a vegetable I don't know, but I never saw him pull up a vegetable. He did have a weakness for snipping off bright blossoms and for picking little green pyramids. When reprimanded, he would make twice as many pyramids. I think the damages were more than compensated for by the extermination of insects."

Maybe I can find room for some other day. And I have several other excellent letters about crows. I'm beginning to think that the crow is about the most intelligent bird on the earth or in the air.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

AMERICANS FLEE FROM CHINESE REVOLT

American Women And Children Flee To Safety

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 9.—Although an undercurrent of uneasiness was still felt, quiet prevailed throughout this republic today.

Practically all American women and children residing at Aux Cayes, where five natives were killed and twenty wounded in a clash between U. S. marines and rioting strikers on Friday, arrived here early today aboard the steamer-er Martinique.

With them were American women and children who had been picked up by the ship at Jeremie.

The U. S. S. Wright, now en route from Norfolk, Va. with a contingent of 500 marines, was expected to arrive here today to reinforce the marine detachments already enforcing martial law in the principal cities of this island.

The cruiser Galveston arrived at Jacmel yesterday morning, its usual complement of 300 officers and men, including fifty marines, and the first addition to the 700 marines already preserving order on the island.

The Galveston made a quick run from the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, after a request had been received at the naval base from Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner in Haiti, asking reinforcements.

The Galveston was ordered to Jacmel because of reports that many natives in that vicinity were heavily armed with weapons supposed to have come from Guatemala.

A feeling of security was noted among the general populace here and in other Haitian cities soon after it was learned that President Hoover had taken immediate action to restore order on this island.

The Haitian national guard was able to preserve order today at several outposts in the Cayes district which previously had been threatened by angry mobs of striking students and workers.

Several persons have been arrested at Cape Haitien charged with agitating for general strikes.

In this city, in particular, there was today hardly a semblance of the disorder which threatened to inflame the entire republic into an inferno of tropical revolution.

The strike of customs employees was virtually at an end. More than 50 per cent of the strikers had returned to their positions while there were many number of applicants for the remaining positions left open by the strikers.

Extreme tension is still being felt throughout the south of Haiti. Telephone communications south of Aux Cayes have been severed.

FRENCH DEBT PACT SETTLEMENT WILL MEET OPPOSITION

Administration To
Passage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The administration will inaugurate a campaign for congressional ratification of the Mellon-Berenger pact settling France's four billion dollar war debt to the United States on a 50 per cent basis in the face of stiff opposition, it was announced today.

The first step in the legislative movement will be a hearing by the house ways and means committee tomorrow, at which representatives of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will appear for speedy favorable action.

Although the passage of the ratification resolution is predicted in the house, which ratified the pact in 1926, opponents promised to wage a stubborn fight. Ratification of a second time has become necessary since France only ratified the agreement last summer.

The present great prosperity of France and the huge reparations payment she will receive under the Young plan are to be invoked in the effort to halt ratification. Rep. Garner of Texas, Democratic leader, will lead the opposition.

"I have never supported it and I never will; it is unfair to the American taxpayers," said Garner. Rep. Henry T. Rainey (D) of Illinois, who filed a minority report in the previous fight, assailed the pact.

"An examination of the financial situation in France will show her capacity to pay was never greater," said Rainey.

"In sixty-two years France will pay us in principal and interest about as much as she will receive in thirty-seven years under the Dawes plan. In addition to the amount France will receive in the way of reparations in sixty-two years, she receives in territory Alsace-Lorraine and the great Cameroon district in South Africa, adjacent to the French Congo.

"With the above evidence before us we are asked to scale the indebtedness of France to us by 50 per cent. If the French government should pay us according to the settlement we obtained with the British, she would ultimately pay us nearly ten billions. The sacrifice we made in the settlement with Great Britain was great indeed, but if we accept that as the character of a settlement that ought to be made with France, we would get $3,200,000,000 more in sixty-two years than we will get if this settlement goes through."

"The debt agreement is exactly the same as when the house last approved it, and I expect it to pass again," said Rep. Hawley (R) of Oregon, chairman of the ways and means committee.

"I shall support it, because Mr. Hoover, Mr. Mellon and I made the settlement," said Rep. Charles Crisp (D) of Georgia, who was a member of the World War debt funding commission. "I believe it will pass without trouble."

"The settlement was made on the basis of France's capacity to pay and is a liberal settlement. It is a settlement at 50 cents on the dollar. In effect, France is required to pay only what she borrowed after the armistice. The statements made in France that we have tried to exact 'blood money,' therefore, are without foundation."

The pact settles a $14,025,000,000 debt on the basis of cash payments covering sixty-two years, and running from $30,000,000 to $113,000,000 a year. The debt is to be paid by 1987. France may postpone payments for three years, the postponed amount to bear 4-1/4 per cent interest. Bonds shall be issued by France for the amount funded, bearing from one to 3-1/2 per cent interest. The total amount to be received for $3,240,000,000 originally loaned France will be $6,847,674,104, according to government experts.

GAS BLASTS TAKE TOLL IN PITTSBURGH SUBURB

Two gas explosions, one demolishing the Munhall, Pa., postoffice, and the second wrecking a drug store next door, have taken a toll of five lives and injured nearly fifty persons in the Pittsburgh suburb. Photos show, left, the wreckage of a street car, which was passing the postoffice at the time of the blast, and in which fourteen were injured, and right, searchers trying to find the injured in the postoffice ruins after the explosion. Leaking gas pipes are believed to have been the cause of both explosions.

GALE ABATES ALONG BRITISH COAST BUT SHIPPING SUFFERS

Believe Many Ships Still
Are Dead

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The furious gale which wracked the coasts of Great Britain and the continent over the week-end, taking a toll of more than fifty lives, paralyzing shipping and causing untold personal damage, abated somewhat today but a number of craft were still believed in distress.

The Cunard liner Albatross, after a strenuous passage through the heart of the storm from New York, went out of its course to go to the steamer Tynedridge which reported its steering gear was disabled near the entrance to the English channel.

Many craft, partially disabled off the continent, were limping toward coastal ports. Several others were reported in distress in the English channel and in the Atlantic north and south of the channel.

One 11,000 ton ship enroute from Hamburg to its dry-dock at Rotterdam was reported to have been broken in two in the storm. Eight of its crew were reported saved but at least two are known to have been lost.

Ten bodies were picked up on the English coast.

Twenty-one seamen were lost when the steamship Rader went down in the height of the storm. Two sailors were washed off the H. M. S. Walpole near Plymouth.

The liner President Roosevelt reached Plymouth reporting a 100-mile an hour gale, mountainous seas and damaged upper decks.

The White Star liner Homerich reached Southampton more than twenty hours late, with her promenade deck windows, sixty feet above the water-line, smashed.

Plymouth Harbor was filled with damaged craft which had crept back to avert greater damages to their super-structure.

The Hamburg-American liner Kellwald, bound for South America, was forced back to Plymouth unable to log more than thirty-four miles in twenty-four hours.

The English coast and the coasts of France and Holland, as well, were strewn with wreckage.

DETECTIVES TRIED
NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Charged with laxity in the investigation of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, gambler, Detective Sergeant John Cordes and Detective Patrick Flood were to go on trial at police headquarters today, with Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen presiding.

ATTORNEY DIES
CHARDON, O., Dec. 9.—E. E. Moyer, 65, veteran Geauga County attorney, died here today after an illness of several weeks.

DYNAMITE BOMB CLAIMS THREE YOUNG CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Faced with a mass of unrelated information, police, under the personal supervision of Commissioner Grover Whalen, today began investigation into the explosion of a dynamite bomb which cost the lives of three young children in the kitchen of their Brooklyn home.

The victims, Mary, Philip and Rose Falzone, fifteen, thirteen and eight years of age, respectively, were dressing to go to mass when a large brown package on the table exploded with terrible force. Mary and Philip were killed outright, Rose dying on the way to the hospital. The explosion rocked neighboring houses and was heard for blocks.

Joseph Falzone, father of the slain children, and the prosperous owner of a marble works, had departed Thursday, telling his wife he was going on a hunting trip to Pennsylvania. He returned late last night and was immediately questioned by police.

The police today had unearthed the following facts:

That Falzone had received threatening letters within the past few weeks demanding money and warning him to get out of the country.

That there has been difficulty between Falzone and his wife over a woman who, police said had told Mrs. Falzone that Falzone was the father of a three year old boy.

And that Mrs. Falzone last June had her husband taken to a police station, charging he threatened her life.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS SLAYING OF TEACHER; DENTIST IS HELD

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 9.—An attractive young school teacher mysteriously slain in her bedroom, the arrest of a well-known Rockford dentist formerly prominent in Hollywood, five dead cats found in his automobile and a dead mouse found in his pocket, today presented a weird kaleidoscope of events to police who are attempting to solve the mysterious slaying.

The school teacher, Miss Cordelia Gummshelmer, was found apparently clubbed to death with an iron pipe which the slayer had obtained not far from her apartment. The imprint of a man's hand upon her body, a footprint on the bedspread and fingerprints on the pipe were the only tangible clues police had to work upon.

The dentist, Floyd Leach, 36, had been intoxicated for two weeks, police said, and was unable to account for his actions during that time.

When friends became suspicious after she had failed to answer a call, police entered the teacher's apartment and found her pajama-clad body propped up in bed. Nearby lay a two-foot length of gas pipe which the slayer had presumably used as a weapon, according to police.

Neighbors declared that they had heard a man and woman conversing in her apartment Saturday night — approximately the hour when physicians say she met death.

A rear screen had been removed, leading police to believe that the murderer had entered stealthily through a window.

TO ELECT OFFICERS

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 9.—Furious debate over the election of officers by referendum and proportional representation were predicted as today's sessions of the twentieth biennial convention of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union were resumed here today.

Pressure of business, which forced holding the convention over into this week, was so great that Benjamin Schlesinger, New York, president of the union, indicated today that a night session may be invoked in order that officials of the organization may confer with Governor Franklin Roosevelt in New York Thursday.

BRITISH CRUISERS SENT TO SHANGHAI; NANKING ATTACKED

U. S. S. Tulsa Takes Americans Aboard;
Many In Peril

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Three British cruisers were ordered to proceed from Shanghai to Nanking to protect British lives and property from harm owing to the civil war raging near the Nationalist capital, it was stated in authoritative sources here today.

The cruisers are H. M. S. Berwick and two others.

PEKING, Dec. 9.—The revolt now flaming across the Chinese horizon has reached such serious proportions as to imperil the lives of Americans and other foreigners in the affected areas.

The American legation here announced today that seventy-three of the 120 American residents of the Nationalist capital, Nanking, have been taken aboard the U. S. S. Tulsa.

The Tulsa is now standing by at Ichang to take aboard Americans endangered by the fighting between rebels and Nationalists there.

Admiral McVeagh, in charge of the fleet of American destroyers in Chinese waters, is distributing his craft among the various Chinese ports now in the danger zones to facilitate evacuation of Americans.

The British and foreign governments are taking similar measures. In Peking there is quiet, but in Nanking, stronghold of the Nationalists, it is reported a heavy

WILLIAM MAXWELL MEMORIAL BODY IS ORGANIZED AT MEET

Visits Site Of Grave

Senator G. M. Kiamler, Preble County, was elected chairman and Rep. H. E. C. Rowe, Holmes County, was chosen secretary when the William Maxwell Memorial Committee, formed to purchase a site in Greene County and erect a memorial to William Maxwell, the first publisher in the Northwest Territory, held its organization meeting in Xenia Saturday.

Originally the committee was composed of three representatives each from the upper and lower branches of the general assembly but the membership was reduced to five a month ago when Senator C. C. Chapplear, Circleville, resigned his senate seat.

Other members of the committee are: Senator Robert L. Rohbe, Titusville.

FRACTURED SKULL FATAL TO AUTOIST

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 9.—A fractured skull, which he sustained late Saturday night when the automobile which he was driving crashed into a tree and telephone pole on the outskirts of the village of Barnhill, near here, today had caused the death of Charles W. Wolfe, 38.

Wolfe was president of the Bergholz Lumber Co. at Bergholz, near here, and was a salesman for the West Penn Lumber Co. of Pittsburgh. He was a World War veteran.

MORPHINE TABLETS FOUND IN CIGARETTES SENT PRISONER

LONDON, O., Dec. 9.—Thirty-seven alleged morphine tablets were discovered in a package of cigarettes which was mailed to James McKirgan, of Columbus, who is being held in jail here for a purported blackmail attempt against Dr. W. D. Gardner, of Plain City, according to Sheriff Ed Blaughner today.

The package was sent to McKirgan by his wife, Mrs. Belle McKirgan, of Columbus, Sheriff Blaughner stated, and he said similar packages have been coming in for some time.

Sheriff Blaughner had been suspicious of McKirgan's actions for some time and believed the prisoner had been receiving dope, but could not locate the source of the supply.

The tablets were in one of four packages in which the cigarettes had been broken so that dope could be placed in the package and then packed with cotton so that the tips of the cigarettes were kept even with the others. The government stamp on the package apparently had been steamed off and then replaced.

No action has been taken on the finding of the dope as yet. The case has been turned over to Prosecutor Dean Richmond.

DENY MISS BOW TRIED SUICIDE

Richman Announces Marriage Date, For January 1

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 9.—Attendants at Sylvan Lodge Hospital, where Clara Bow is convalescing, today disclaimed all knowledge of a reported suicide attempt by the famous screen actress.

Rumors that Miss Bow had stabbed herself in the hospital were denied by her nurse and other hospital attaches. According to the report, the star tried to kill herself because her fiancé, Harry Richman, night club entertainer, was rumored to have broken their engagement.

The report lacked confirmation at the hospital.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9.—Announcing that the date of his marriage to Clara Bow, motion picture actress, has been set for New Year's Day, Harry Richman, musical comedy star, today shattered a rumor that the Hollywood romance had gone on the rocks.

Richman explained that he plans to leave for New York as soon as his fiancée leaves the hospital here where she is recuperating from an appendicitis operation.

ACQUIT ARNOLDS OF HORST KIDNAPING; CRIME IS UNSOLVED

Authorities Think Boy Dead; Missing Nearly Year

WOOSTER, O., Dec. 9.—Un-avenged and unsolved, the kidnaping of 4-year-old Melvin Horst, of Orrville, remained as much an enigma today as it was when the child so mysteriously disappeared from the streets of Wayne County village on the night of December 27 last year.

Elias and Arthur Arnold—64-year-old father and 18-year-old son—who were charged with "child-stealing" in connection with the tot's disappearance, were freed by a jury of eight men and four women late Saturday night.

For a week, the two Arnolds faced the ordeal of a second trial and the climax was reached when the jury returned the "not guilty" verdict. In doing so, it apparently did not believe the testimony of 8-year-old Junior Hanna, who, from the witness stand, said he saw the Arnolds entice Melvin into the Arnold home. Then later, the "boy-witness" testified, he saw Arthur carry Melvin to an automobile and drive away.

Junior's testimony and public sentiment are thought to have convicted the Arnolds at their first trial. After their first conviction, Elias was taken to the Ohio State penitentiary and his son was committed to the Mansfield reformatory for an indefinite term.

Even when confined in the penal institutions, the Arnolds maintained that they were innocent.

"God knows I didn't steal that child," Elias said when he was released into the Ohio State penitentiary to begin the 20-year term which had been imposed upon him.

The Wayne County appellate court granted the Arnolds a new trial which started last Monday and ended late Saturday with the acquittal verdict.

Melvin disappeared two nights after Christmas. His mother believes that the lad will return to her. She has kept his toys which Melvin received last year and the Christmas tree under which they were placed.

Authorities, however, are staunch in their belief that the child is dead.

UNION ASKS PROBE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 9.—Support of all Youngstown labor organizations in a demand for a thorough investigation of the death of John P. McLaughlin, 45, printer, who was killed here last Thursday by a police automobile, will be asked at a meeting of the United labor congress here tonight. Typographical Union delegates to the congress asserted today.

Some time ago and believed the prisoner had been receiving dope, but could not locate the source of the supply.

The tablets were in one of four packages in which the cigarettes had been broken so that dope could be placed in the package and then packed with cotton so that the tips of the cigarettes were kept even with the others. The government stamp on the package apparently had been steamed off and then replaced.

No action has been taken on the finding of the dope as yet. The case has been turned over to Prosecutor Dean Richmond.

BECOMES MEMBER IF SENATE APPROVES; ACTION EXPECTED

Articles Amended So That Entry Is Anticipated

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—With the exception of senatorial ratification, the United States became an active member of the world court here today when Jay Pierrepont Moffat, American charge d'affaires at Berne, Switzerland, signed the articles of adherence to the institution.

Moffat was acting under the authority of President Hoover. The signing was done with almost an utter absence of ceremony.

This was the second time the United States signed the articles of adherence to the international court, of which virtually all the countries of Europe are members. The first time was in 1920, when the then American minister at Berne signed on behalf of the United States.

On this occasion, however, the senate demanded reservations which were held unsuitable by the other nations, since that time, the articles of the world court have been amended in such a manner that American entry is now considered agreeable to the United States senate.

The leading nations of Europe have approved the changes in the court protocol, it is now expected that the senate will ratify the articles of adherence to the world court.

The signing of the articles of adherence to the world court was made by President Hoover and his Armistice Day address, which he revealed he would make the proper authorities to sign the protocol on behalf of the United States.

Moffat signed three documents. One was the original world court protocol. Another embodied the revisions made in the original protocol by the member nations, and the third set forth the reservations under which the United States agreed to enter the court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—With the signing of the world court protocol containing the so-called Root-Hurst advisory opinion compromise in Geneva today by J. Pierrepont Moffat, American charge d'affaires, on behalf of the United States, American membership in the court now becomes dependent upon senate ratification.

President Hoover declared in his annual message to congress that he would submit the instrument when convenient. In some quarters it was believed he would wait until a majority of the signatories of the original protocol, some fifty odd nations, took final action. Thus far about fifty have signed the amended pact but only a few have ratified.

That considerable opposition will develop in the senate when the pact comes up for ratification, was indicated today. Already there is some talk of attempting to amend the compromise Elihu Root, negotiated in Geneva last summer to obtain an agreement on the senate's famous fifth reservation, further to protect the interests of the United States.

The Root-Hurst compromise permits the United States to withdraw from the court in the event an advisory opinion is sought without the consent of this country in any case in which it has or claims an interest.

In making the announcement of President Hoover's authorization for Moffat to sign the instrument, the state department made public the correspondence which passed between the president and Secretary of State Stimson.

Stimson submitted to the president his recommendation that the pact should be signed in a lengthy review of the world court problem which in substance, if not in form, was a lawyer's brief for the world court advocates.

Obviously designed to anticipate and meet senate opposition, Stimson's letter to the president traced back 30 years the leading part the United States had taken in the movement for arbitration of international disputes; cited the original Hague conference of 1899, and emphasized President Roosevelt's instructions to Elihu Root, then secretary of state, at the second Hague conference in 1907, to work for the development of the court of arbitration.

GIRL ABDUCTED BY TRIO AT IRONTON

IRONTON, O., Dec. 9.—Police today are searching for three men who are thought to have abducted Cleo Hall, 17-year-old Ironton girl. Juanita and Beatrice Keating, sisters, who were companions of the missing girl, declared they met the three men at a dance and accepted a ride to their homes. The girls said the men had told them they were from Huntington, W. Va.

When they reached home, the Keatings girls declared, they were allowed to alight from the automobile, but the men held Miss Hall in the machine and drove quickly away.

ONE OF FIRST TOWNS BEING REBUILT FOR MUSEUM VILLAGE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 9.—Schoenbrunn, Ohio's first town, is being dug out of its 136-year-old grave and rebuilt into a museum village which may rival that of Henry Ford's at Dearborn, Mich.

The site where the town of Schoenbrunn once stood, is only a short distance from New Philadelphia. For years it has been fertile farm land. Now it is the scene of excavations which are uncovering historical data of life 136 years ago when the town was in existence.

The town is being rebuilt through the efforts of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society who hope to make it a "museum of pioneer life."

The "lost village" was located through the records of the Moravian Church at Bethlehem, Pa. Excavators started digging and unearthed skeletons of these first settlers as were shown in the records. Later a fireplace, believed to have been that of the cabin of David Ziesberger, Ohio's first school teacher was found with charred logs still about it.

With these discoveries began the reconstruction of the town. A replica of Schoenbrunn's school house has been erected, and plans made for a lasting memorial.

The history of Schoenbrunn dates back to May 3, 1772, when Ziesberger accompanied by other pioneers blazed their way to this territory and began the erection of a village. Five years later the town was burned by the Shawnee Indians.

Reconstruction of the town was brought about by state legislation recently. It is planned to make the museum village a monument to the cradle of Ohio history and a memorial to all pioneers of the West.

WILBERFORCE HAS ENROLLMENT OF 600; FINANCES ARE STABLE

Wilberforce University closed the fall quarter December 3 with an enrollment of nearly 600 students of college rank, the largest enrollment in the history of the University. Of the students of college rank, the college of liberal arts and sciences led with an enrollment of 212, the college of education enrolled 150, the college of commerce, seventy-five; the elementary teachers' course, fifty-five and the seminary forty-nine.

Of this year's several innovations, all are proving highly successful, it is said. The grouping of all educational work under the college of education with an interchange of instruction with the faculty of the college of liberal arts and sciences on the basis of clock-hour remuneration has insured the further financial stability of the university.

In the latest Medical Association report, based on a Phelps Stokes survey of Negro colleges, Wilber-

force is classed in group 1, a vast improvement over the Phelps Stokes survey of 1914 conducted by Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones. The committee on intercollegiate relations is doing much to foster contacts with other Ohio institutions of learning in the way of exchange of lectures, class and field trips and personal contacts with instructors in corresponding departments.

The "Million Dollar Endowment Drive," in the six months of effort, has netted $55,000 pledged and collected to date. Regular college courses offered in evening session by the college faculty beginning the second quarter supply a long felt community need and already the enrollment approximates fifty.

The college of music conducts monthly vespers services which are to surrounding towns what the community sings are to Tuskegee.

All student publications have been put under faculty direction and supervision, with the result that for the first time the senior annual, the "Forecan" will this year be published as a university function.

A debating team of much forensic ability will be host to Northwestern University in a joint debate. The musical groups have made several public and private appearances with the enthusiastic reception.

The Extension Department, with three field workers, renders invaluable aid to the community in giving farm and house help and instruction.

Movie Monotypes By RADIE HARRIS

1—RONALD COLMAN
Is eighth wonder of the world—an Englishman who drinks coffee. Childhood ambition was to be the man who sampled for the Huntley and Palmer biscuit factory. Now wants to play drawing room comedies by Frederick Lonsdale.

Always shaves off his mustache while vacationing to hide his identity. Discovers in three days that it doesn't work, and lets it grow again.

Hates answering telephone. Will allow it to ring indefinitely rather than answer it himself.

Is Anita Loos' idea of a perfect gentleman—prefers blondes for his leading ladies. Makes no limitations for his non-professional "heart interests."

Can't resist the "clang" of a fire engine. Always chases it to its final destination.

His Bath Song
Sings in bath and while making up. Is always the same song, "Do You Ken John Peel?"

Lives in style to which Hollywood is unaccustomed. Has only one car, a roadster, which he drives himself, and only two servants, both Filipinos. Never tells them what he wants to eat.

Dresses for dinner every night except when on location. Did sneak bolted shirt into valise when leaving for Catalina on "The Rescue" but never had nerve enough to wear it.

Shampoos his own hair every Sunday morning. Has never been manicured.

Has a gnawing desire to take a two-year yacht trip through the South seas and a sail down the river Nile.

Light Opera Fiend
Adores Gilbert and Sullivan. Has already worn out five records of "a more humane Mikado never did in Japan exist."

Hates charity bazaars, French pastry and the man who invented flashlight powder.

Reads every new stage play in book form and owns one of the best private play libraries in Hollywood.

Is still a bachelor because he is not yet divorced from his wife, Thelma Raye, whom he married in England ten years ago. The other reasons don't count.

Believes in the slogan, "Don't write, telegraph," but will allow his own telegrams to remain unopened for days, so fearful is he of their content.

Twice a Day!
Takes two cold showers every day. Is a matter of record that no "dirt" eyer has been attached to his name.

Dislikes bridge but thinks a "royal flush" is pretty exciting.

Would smoke a pipe even if it didn't look well in photographs.

Wore kilts for two years during the war and still blushes when he thinks about it.

Detests personal appearances. Was compelled to make one several months ago at the New York and Hollywood premiers of "Bull Dog Drummond." When asked to come east for another one in conjunction with "Condemned," his answer was, "I don't consider myself sufficiently ready for vaudeville."

Music Club Will Present Christmas Program

The Xenia Woman's Music Club will present an ensemble program of Christmas music, Tuesday evening at Trinity M. E. Church. The program, which starts at 8 o'clock, is open to the public. The program follows:

Part I

"There's a Star in the Sky" — Christmas Hymn
Semi-Chorus
"Shepherd's Pipes" — Harris
Miss Rankin
"O Little Town of Bethlehem" — "Silent Night"
Mrs. Hammerle, Mrs. Croy, Mrs. Williams and Miss Stout

CHILDREN OF TRINITY CHURCH ENJOY PARTY

Approximately forty children of Trinity M. E. Church gathered at the church Saturday afternoon and enjoyed a delightful Christmas party.

The church rooms were beautifully decorated with Christmas decorations. A Christmas tree was in one corner of the Sunday School room.

During the program the Rev. L. A. Washburn, pastor of the church, told the youngsters the Christmas story to the youngsters. Little Jimmy Stout, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stout, told a story of "How Christmas is Spent in All Lands," and Janet Chamberlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chamberlin, told of "How Christmas is Spent in Holland."

Jean Conklin, local reader, gave several readings at the close of the program. The meeting was presided over by Mildred Leveck, president of the Children's Missionary Society.

At the close of the program the hostesses, who were Mrs. Clarence Chaffield, Mrs. J. J. Stout, Mrs. A. A. Conklin, Mrs. J. Siders, and Mrs. Elmer Spahr, served dainty refreshments.

ENTERTAINMENT WITH DINNER PARTY FOR MR. SMITH

For the pleasure of Mr. Alfred Smith, N. West St., Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Smith, N. Detroit St., delightedly entertained at their home, Friday evening, with a dinner party. Mr. Alfred Smith is a graduate of Mr. M. A. Smith, and the occasion was his nineteenth birthday.

A three course dinner was served at a beautifully decorated table in the dining room of the home. Green and red was the color scheme in keeping with the Christmas season. A large birthday cake with a figure "39" made of red sugar and decorated in green candles in red holders, centered the table. There were fourteen guests present and five generations were represented.

Those present were: Mr. Alfred Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, N. Galloway St., Mr. and Mrs. Elton Smith and son Burrell of New Jasper, Mrs. Mildred Miller and sons Hickey and Allen, S. Monroe St., Mrs. Lois Van Zant, Xenia, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Smith and Mrs. Mary T. Lambert. A social time enjoyed following the dinner.

Luther League of the First Lutheran Church will hold its regular business meeting in the Sunday School rooms of the church Monday night at 7:30. A Christmas party and a gift exchange will follow. Miss Phyllis Mellage will be hostess to the league upon this occasion.

Warren Soward, Upper Bellbrook Pike, who underwent an operation here, last Monday, is improving nicely.

Miss Helen Spahr, E. Third St., will be hostess to members of Alpha Theta Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Iron Lantern.

Members of Aldora Chapter No. 262, O. E. S., will meet at Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Installation of officers will feature the meeting.

The Ladies Aid Society meeting of the Presbyterian Church which was to have been held Thursday afternoon, has been postponed until Wednesday, December 18 at the home of Mrs. R. D. Adair, N. Galloway St.

Mrs. Walter Wike, High St., spent the week end in Dayton, where she was called on account of the serious illness of her brother-in-law, Mr. William Phares.

Dr. and Mrs. John Ayer, W. Second St., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grotty, Mt. Washington, Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Burrer and Mr. and Mrs. James M. Barkdull, Cincinnati, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cox, N. King St.

Members of the Sunshine Society are urged to attend the regular meeting at the home of Mrs. David Lewis, E. Second St., Tuesday.

Mrs. Clara Treets Hammons, Greenville, is spending two weeks in this city as the guest of Mrs. David L. Croy, W. Second St.

Miss Lucile Anderson, Jamestown Pike, is confined to her home suffering from an infected ear.

Mr. Morris, near Waynesville, had two fingers of his left hand amputated at the McClellan Hospital Saturday, after accidentally catching his hand in a corn shred der.

The meeting of the Junior Woman's Club will be held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Woodruff, E. Second St., Tuesday afternoon. Instead of at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Lindaker, as previously announced, "The Novel" will be the topic of the day.

The Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Fox, Lansing, Mich., spent the week end in this city as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rader, S. Columbus St. The Rev. Mr. Fox is a former pastor of the First Reformed Church having been here about thirty years ago. He is now pastor of a large church at Lansing and he and his wife are enroute to Florida where they will spend the winter, making a four months leave of absence.

King St., had as their week-end guests, Mrs. Ungard's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnson, Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smith and son Bennie, E. Main St., were week-end guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Scott, Springfield.

Breaks World Record

Ruth Alexander.

Circling at an altitude of more than 18,000 feet over San Diego, Cal., Miss Ruth Alexander, 24, a student of a flying school, recently established a world record for women aviators.

The record is for light planes, the late Marvel Crosson having set the altitude record for heavy planes.

Miss Alexander was in the air but one hour and fifty minutes. The exact altitude obtained on the flight will not be known until the sealed barograph carried in the plane has been calibrated in Washington, according to officials of the National Aeronautical association, sponsors of the flight.

YOUNG HINDU TELLS REACTIONS TO LIFE IN AMERICA SUNDAY

"Getting accustomed to this changeable climate is one of my most difficult problems in this country," declared Aubrey Bowen, New Amsterdam, British Guiana, in an address delivered Sunday evening before the largest Luther League meeting held in the First Lutheran Church in recent years.

Bowen is a young Hindu lad, a Lutheran, and is enrolled in the arts department of Wittenberg College, Springfield. He hails from the second oldest Lutheran Church in British Guiana and is proud to state that this church has withstood the torments of the world for 159 years.

The young Guianian told of some of the Lutheran mission work in his country and especially centered his attention upon the progress that is being made in the Luther League there at present. He voiced his appreciation to that organization for having made him to have a friendly and brotherly spirit toward other people, whether they were of his own race or not. Bowen's father was also a Lutheran missionary among the Hindus of British Guiana, and from his parent, young Aubrey saw the need and the possibility of Christianizing his fellow natives. "Public speaking and the real earnest learning of the English language were taught to me through contacts with my Luther League," averred the young student and he found numerous phrases to declare his appreciation to this Lutheran young people's organization.

The Rev. Harlow E. Haas, pastor of the Hilltop Memorial Lutheran Church, Columbus, and a former Lutheran missionary to British Guiana, aided in converting the youth to Christianity and later encouraged him to study in this country at Wittenberg College. Bowen expects to complete his college and seminary courses before returning to his native country to become a missionary.

Among some of the other incidents he related included experiences in an elevator (for this contrivance is not known in British Guiana), with the recent snowfall, zero weather, American slang, restaurants, cafeterias and motor trips. His audience sat spellbound while he told of these and a foreigner's reaction to them.

Miss Helen Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nichols, Burlington Pike, was in charge of the meeting. Miss Katherine Maxwell delighted the audience with a violin solo. She was accompanied by Mrs. C. F. Mellage. The Rev. Adrian G. Lebold introduced the speaker who is a personal friend of the young Xenia pastor.

Invitations have been issued for a dance given for the east and assisting staff of the "Tip-Top Revue" Wednesday evening, at Elks Hall. Members of the Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity are sponsoring the dance. Each one may invite a guest.

HELLO, LEVI!

TELEPHONE service to the steamship Leviathan, miles at sea, was made available from any Bell Telephone in the country at 11:45 a. m. Sunday, when the service was commercially inaugurated.

The rate from Xenia will be $24 for the first three minutes and $8 for each additional minute. The report charge is $2. Service will be available on all incoming and outgoing trips while the ship is in range.

To place a call, it is necessary only to call the long distance operator in the usual way.

JUDGES TARGET OF BROOKHART ATTACK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Many federal judges should be impeached because they are not handing out stiff enough sentences for prohibition violation and because they are allowing their dockets to become congested with dry law cases, according to Senator Smith W. Brookhart (R) of Iowa, who recently startled the capital by voluntarily appearing before a grand jury and telling of liquor he saw consumed at a private dinner party at which he was a guest.

Brookhart was one of the speakers last night at an Anti-Saloon League banquet.

"If a court will impose proper penalties it will soon clear up its docket," said Brookhart.

The Iowan also demanded the resignation of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon saying he had not enforced prohibition.

TALKIE FRIGHTENS AWAY BURGLARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A "talkie" prevented a safe robbery in the B. F. T. Theater in Brooklyn early today.

Three thugs, intent upon robbing the safe of week-end receipts totalling $5,000, forced the two night watchmen, Edward and Charles Jones, father and son, into the orchestra pit and were torturing them when—

Suddenly voices came from the stage. Good, strong bass voices. Repair men had been at work on the electrical mechanism which had gone wrong during the evening performance.

The bandits fled, they had evidently hidden behind the front row seats after the last night performance and laydied the watchmen.

It was the first time, so far as known, that a "talkie" prevented a hold-up.

COUNCILMEN BEING TRIED ON CHARGES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9.—Councilmen William E. Potter and Robert Bunowicz were scheduled to go on trial at 9 a. m., today on charges of harboring Harmon G. Atwater, "key witness" in the Coit-St. Clair playground fraud here, as a fugitive.

Considerable difficulty was anticipated today in seating of a jury for the trial owing to the wide publicity given the playground fraud negotiations and the nation-wide hunt for Atwater, who was allegedly on the "inside" of the deal, which has already involved a number of city officials.

One of the state witnesses was expected to be City Clerk Fred W. Thomas who will go on trial later with Potter on charges of having had an interest in a city contract in the playground deal.

Wisecracking Radio Speaker Has Record Of 1,000 Hours On Air

ROCKY WOLFE

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Ladies and gentlemen, to the west over here we have the world's most unique and goofy studio. Step right up and listen in.

"Boy—copy!"

"Hey, Rocky, here's a guy to see you."

"Shut up! I'm on the air."

"Ha, ha, ha! He's on the air."

But, Rocky Wolfe, having patiently taken his radio equipment out of a rickety old box and dusted it off with his coat sleeve, strangled the tubes in which the copy shoots into the sports department of his Chicago newspaper with one hand, and waves aside the wise crackers at the desks round him with the other.

"Hello, hello, hello."

In the Sports Room

That's the signal you hear. But, you haven't seen or heard a thing if you have never been able to drop into the sports room where the famous white-haired, young faced Rocky is editor, and watched the show.

He's been on about a thousand hours in the last three years, so that most of you must have caught him giving his news reports. The entire office force is agin him. No enlisted the night before in the naval officers' training school.

"After joining the navy and seeing the world through a port hole I took a job in the publicity department for four years. Then this paper I'm on now began to lose circulation and they told me if I'd consider an offer they'd give it a new name and let me do the rest. Now the paper is connected with me."

That's Rocky. In his own words. But it wouldn't be Rocky without his final sign off:

"Brighten the corner where you are."

YOUTHS STONE CAR; SUSPECT ARRESTED

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Believed to be one of the trio of young men who bombarded a local street car with stones which did considerable damage to the tram and inflicted painful bruises to Motorman Flovin, Verne Greer, 22, is being held here today by police for investigation.

The three men who boarded the street car started an argument and were ejected from the car by the conductor, Albert N. Downer, and an unidentified passenger. The trio then engaged a taxi and pursued the tram to the end of the line where they alighted and threw stones at the car and its crew. Their vengeance apparently appeased, the three men then drove away in the cab.

Greer, it was alleged, was later seen throwing a stone at a car by Grover C. Miller, traffic supervisor who gave chase and captured him for questioning by police.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

MR. HOOVER'S ATTITUDE

What President Coolidge said from time to time in the way of warning against federal encroachment upon the rights of the forty-eight states of the Union, evidently found some permanent lodgment in the mind of President Hoover. Twice in those parts of his message to congress in which he discusses aspects of federal aid and of matters having both interstate and intrastate aspects, the chief executive warns against the undermining of state rights and "local and individual responsibility," which he calls "one of the most precious possessions of the American people."

Nevertheless, throughout a considerable section of the presidential document, the presence of a strong current counter to the perpetuation of this precious possession, is considerably in evidence.

In discussing conservation of oil and gas resources and grazing lands, and in dealing with the reclamation question, Mr. Hoover speaks of better division of responsibilities in regard to these questions "as between the state and federal governments" in a connection which rather emphasizes the federal part of the job. Almost in the same breath in which he warns against federal encroachment on local liberty in the field of social service, he says, "Federal officials can, however, make further and most important contribution by leadership in stimulation of the community and voluntary agencies, and by extending federal assistance in organization of these forces and bringing about co-operation among them," in other words, by supervising them.

Later on the President speaks of the appointment of a "voluntary committee of distinguished membership" to assist the secretary of the interior in a "nation-wide movement for abolition of illiteracy," of recommendations for additional appropriations for federal employment service to more "fully cover its co-operative work with state and local services," and for research work in the women's and children's bureaus.

Again, Mr. Hoover talks of the obligation of the government to contribute to the establishment of health education agencies in the state and local units. He suggests a continuance of the Shepherd-Towner act, and says, "I recommend * * * that the congress should consider the desirability of confining the use of federal funds by the states to the building up of such county or other local units, and that such outlay should be positively co-ordinated with the funds expended through the United States public health service, directed to other phases of the same county or other local unit organizations."

The trend of the executive mind seems to be toward establishment, or amplification and extension of benevolent bureaucratic agencies of "helpfulness" to the states—and some of them are for the moment very valuable—which, if put into operation and maintained must inevitably curtail local and state freedom prestige and authority, and perhaps in the end, submerge them, so that the words of the constitution "The United States are" will no longer represent the fact.

In part, the attitude of the President is a reaction to a strong natural tendency in the nation which grows out of the inextricably interwoven condition of state and national interests in several important directions and unquestionably calls for a certain amount of co-operation between the two in the handling of public matters, and occasionally for federal domination. But in part, also, it plainly is an outcropping of a strong instinct for organization and paternalism, which always has been a well defined Hoover characteristic.

In this, the President differs from his predecessor in the White House, who fought persistently against any extension of federal power and responsibility through interference in state and local matters, and remarked in addressing congress: "Society is in much more danger from encumbering the national government beyond its wisdom to comprehend or its ability to administer, than from leaving local communities to bear their own burdens and remedy their own evils."

It begins to look as though we might be in for a real old-fashioned winter in spite of the statement of the weather bureau that the temperature will swing back to normal shortly. By the way, what is a normal temperature for this season of the year?

Since the state of Pennsylvania has declined to pay damages to the owner of a motor car with which a deer collided, there seems to be nothing to do except start proceedings against the animal.

WHAT A MEMORY!

Introducing Alexander Dever—Doorman at The Bankers' Club—The Man with the Million Dollar Memory.

There are between 1,000 and 1,200 persons entering and leaving the club daily. One of Dever's duties is to stand within the portico of the coatroom to welcome the coming and speed the parting guest. Alexander qualifies in every detail for his job as swank club attendant. He is not as handsome as the handsomest member. He is neither as dignified as a Supreme Court Justice nor as benevolently effusive as a professional philanthropist as a Christmas party. There is a thin, blue line between the two that Brother Dever treads by instinct.

A month ago the author of these lines savaged the sacred precincts of The Bankers' Club for the purpose of consuming some broiled smelts and discussing a business deal with Emil Scholz, the eminent advertising man.

Mr. Dever had never seen me before. He approached with elevated brow—not too highly elevated, mark you, just elevated at the divine level this side of superciliousness. In a few minutes I was in contact with Emil, we had our smelts and our conference and that was that.

The other day I again invaded the sacrosanct corridors of the Bankers' Club. Again I was in quest of smelts and Emil.

Dever spied me as I alighted from the elevator and without a word on my part advised me that the eminent advertising man had not as yet arrived and would be seated until he hove in sight.

They say a man with a good memory should have a strong chin. Dever has a strong chin.

LET'S BE AMUSED BY BRIDGET

Bridget Farry, chambermaid in the Park Central hotel at the time Arnold Rothstein departed for the New Jerusalem—the Stormy Petrel of the current murder trial—was offered a week or two booking in vaudeville.

While she was scurrying around town consulting the best attorneys as to whether she should hold out for $5,000 a week, word came that the vaudeville people had changed their mind.

Thus the stage lost one of the greatest comedians of all time. "What are your plans?" she was asked.

And she countered with her invariably response:

THE WAY of the WORLD

THE THRILL OF KNOWING

The Classical League of America is to make a praiseworthy effort to direct the attention of the people of this country to the beauty and importance of the Latin literature. The year of the 2000th anniversary of Virgil's birth begins in the fall of 1930. That year will have special observance by the Classical league. You may or may not care for your Virgil, but it is pleasant to hear in these days of "barber shop blues," hysterical guitar songs designed for the flapper trade, and books that go wild, that there is such a thing as a Classical league and somebody who thinks it worthwhile to promote learning that won't bring you a dollar or even a kind word.

Nobody who does not have the satisfaction of knowing a few beautiful and perfectly useless things has much conception of the happy possibilities of education.

FIXING THE EBLAME

Let's not blame the college boys for all that goes on in college. The official chief director of Chicago university suggests that fraternities provide brawny bouncers to keep interlopers and gate-crashers out of their nice parties. And somebody else makes complaint that most of the drunkenness and disorder that have been pointed out in some colleges are brought on by alumni who return to fraternity houses on football days or other occasions.

Perhaps we are going to find out that the average college boy is just a victim of his big brother of the alumni.

PRINCE DIPLOMATIC

The Prince of Wales, making a speech in Bradford, center of the wool industry of England, says: "It is not for me to express whether women are better in short or in long dresses, but for the sake of Bradford's trade I hope they will be 'de long'."

The Prince of Wales, except when he rides a horse, makes few mistakes.

PRESCRIBED READING

If school and school teachers could discover some way—as a few of them do—of creating a young mind the love of study, the love of learning, the sense of beauty, they would be the greatest possible schools and school teachers. Talk to the average student about his courses and he will tell you about his "prescribed reading." He is taking a certain course and in order to get credit, he "has to do so," reading on the side. It's all an effort, all a job, all a chore. It is something prescribed, like bitter medicine. It's a "dreadful teacher who can make sweet the thing prescribed."

Who's Who and Timely Views

By CLARENCE M. YOUNG
Assistant Secretary of Commerce
For Aeronautics.

(Clarence Marshall Young was born at Colfax, Ia., July 23, 1889. He attended Drake university and was graduated from Yale. Admitted to the bar in 1910, he began practicing law at Des Moines, Ia. In 1926 he was named director of aeronautics, department of commerce. He served overseas in the U. S. air service during the World war and was a prisoner of war in Austria for five months.)

AIRPLANE passenger traffic for the first six months of 1929 on scheduled air transport lines reflected appreciable increases over the corresponding period of last year, and the total number of passengers carried will probably increase by 25 per cent during the latter half of the year, due to increased numbers of piloes, planes and airports.

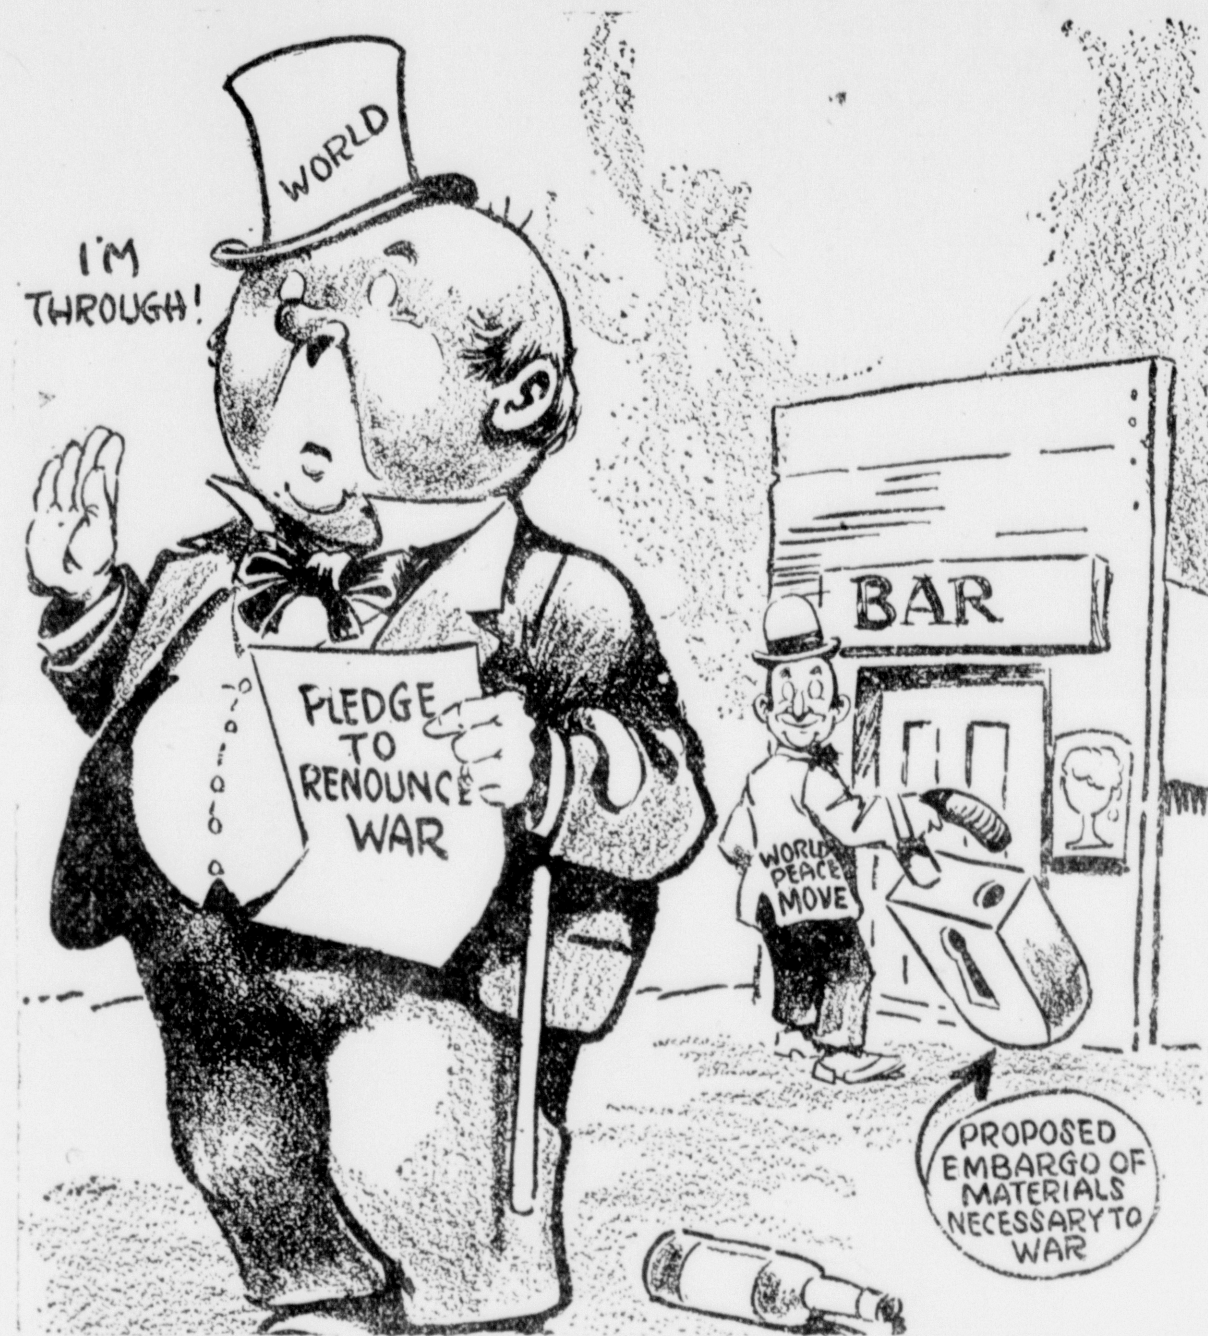

Reports indicate that at least 3,627,003 passengers will have ridden in airplanes during the 13 months ending Dec. 31, 1929.

Basing figures on reports from 227 out of 40 scheduled air transport operators, it is estimated that 45,000 passengers were carried by air transport companies operating on regular schedules during the first six months of the year. This means that an average of 254 passengers are being carried each day on established airways. The majority of flying activities, however, now consist of miscellaneous operations such as aerial sight-seeing and flights, air taxicab services, and other forms of non-scheduled flying.

A recently completed census discloses that approximately 748,000 passengers were carried by miscellaneous aircraft operators during the second quarter of the year (April, May, and June); which means that an average of 8,311 passengers were transported daily by miscellaneous operators, or a total of 8,865 passengers carried each day in all classes of flying during the first six months of this year.

This figure will probably increase at least 25 per cent during the last half of 1929 because of more favorable flying conditions and increased numbers of airports, airplanes, pilots, and operators. It is further estimated from reports received by the department that approximately 47,000,000 passengers were flown by miscellaneous operators during the first six months of this year. According to time schedules published by airways operators, there are now 92,273 miles of flying scheduled daily over established routes. Of this mileage 51,821 are scheduled for the carrying of

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

When Mrs. Evans, on the last day of her visit to New York, came for her last beauty chat, I said to her: "Now I'm going to tell you a little about make-up. Perhaps you don't like the idea of looking 'made up,' but you are wearing a powder right now that is much too light for you. The modern woman chooses her make-up wisely, and applies it wisely. Come over to the window, please, Mrs. Evans, so I can see your skin. That shade of whitish pink powder is very trying to your skin, makes it look withered. You need a powder with a good bit of yellowish tan in it—a deep rachel. But first of all, the right foundation!"

"The dry skin should always have a powder foundation to protect it from the drying, parching effect of wind and sun. The right foundation is also a real beauty aid, for it gives a lovely mat finish, and makes powder and rouge more clinging. There are several excellent foundations, but for you I would choose a delicate cream, made of water lily buds and other protective ingredients. In a deep rachel tone to match your skin."

"I feel like a new woman," she said. And I could see that she really was a new woman—all happy and shining.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, who died theother day at 85, after breaking all records for length of service in the United States senate, told me a couple of years ago that the senate's mentality seemed to him to have deteriorated in his more than a third of a century's observation of it, but that in honesty he had greatly improved.

He was speaking of the average, he was careful to say. "Of course, we have a few members now," qualified the old lawmaker, "who undoubtedly are as brilliant men as ever came to Washington."

"However, the general level certainly is not what it was before the constitution was amended—the days when senators were selected by their state legislatures. There were two sittings then. It took brains to get through."

"At present, under the direct appealing successfully to mass psychology is more of a political asset than the higher quality of real statesmanship. A mighty effective campaign spellbinder quite often rates pretty low in intelligence when national problems are involved."

The venerable legislator was extremely particular not to refer by name to fellow senators of his own—even those whose death had claimed in the long ago. He must not be personal, he said.

Daniel Webster was the most recent one he was willing to identify definitely.

He mentioned even Webster rather skittishly. Evidently he did not regard him as a purely historical character, but as something of a mail in addition to passengers, and 29,108 miles are scheduled for the transport of passengers, express, and freight.

In order to further the increasing utilization and development of aircraft, the department of commerce is rendering every assistance to bring about a combination of four essential elements: (1) airworthy aircraft adequately equipped and efficiently maintained; (2) flown by competent air pilots; (3) suitably equipped airways; (4) in conformity with standard air traffic rules.

Just dot it over the face and throat, then blend with the fingertips until the skin is quite dry and ready for your rouge.

"Choose your rouge carefully, to match your natural coloring. A cream rouge will be best, as it has no tendency to dry the skin. Also it is more natural looking. The shade for you is a rich red raspberry tone, and as your face is a bit long, apply your rouge low on the cheeks, covering a large surface. It will make your face more charmingly oval, and accent your eyes and make them brighter."

"Your lipstick should match your rouge, of course, and to take away that withered look from your eyelids, add just a touch of cream eye shadow in blue."

She stopped in to see me three months later, when she was again in New York, and even I, who know the wonderful effect just a little care will have, was surprised at the difference in Mrs. Evans' appearance.

"I feel like a new woman," she said. And I could see that she really was a new woman—all happy and shining.

contemporary, remarking that he remembered his funeral, being eight years old at the time.

"He illustrates my point," said the senator—"didn't appear to know the meaning of common honesty, did things we would think a man ought to be driven from public life for doing in this generation, wouldn't pay his bills utterly unmoral—and yet no one showed a sign of seeing the slightest harm in it all."

"I don't dispute Webster's greatness," continued the Wyoming veteran.

"People simply had different standards in the mid-nineteenth century."

"Still, it shows what I mean in telling you that the senate's mental quality seems to have declined while the quality of its honesty has become correspondingly better as the decades have passed."

"The old oratory was superior to the present oratory, at any rate."

"Not that I am so sure that that proves much. Our ablest, up-to-date orators are not always our most useful senators. The best committee worker frequently is one of the least conspicuous among us on the floor—and capablecommittee work is fully as important as flowery speeches; maybe more so."

"I could judge more accurately how genuinely servicable those bygone so-called giants were if I had something besides their speeches to estimate them by—ib I had had a little experience among them in a few committee rooms."

Senator Warren could faintly remember Millard Fillmore's inauguration, he told me. He was six years old that year.

Sensors Vandenberg and Dill were just that age the same year that the Wyoming senator first took his seat in the upper house of congress. Senator Black was four, Senators Cutting and Bratton were two. Senator tidings was born that year. Senator was not born until two years later. Senator LaFollette five.

Only 39 of today's senators were old enough to vote when Senator Warren began his credit, compared with Senator Warren's 39.

Senator Warren had been described as "the greatest shepherd since Abraham" long and often enough to have grown rather tiresome. It was very happily expressed when Senator Jonathan P. Doherty, of Iowa, originally thought of it a generation ago; it palled with about the millionth repetition.

Nevertheless, it was somewhat curious that Wyoming's two senators, Warren and John Kendrick, should have been the one a sheep king and the other a cattle magnate.

Sheep and cattle men traditionally are supposed to hate each other like poison.

The fact that Warren was one of the most regular of Republicans and Kendrick a lifelong Democrat and that they had campaigned against each other (or at least pretended to at every election for years (Kendrick being on the farther side of 70 himself) ought not, theoretically, to have improved relations between them, either.

And yet they were perhaps the best pair of friends on the senate floor.

RAISIN CUSTARD PIE—Make a rich pie crust and line deep pie pan. Cover bottom of crust with raisins. Over raisins pour the following mixture: Two eggs, one pint milk, one teaspoon cornstarch dissolved in a little water, vanilla and sugar to taste, about three-fourth cup. Bake in slow oven about 45 minutes or until custard is set and crust brown.

CHEESE RAMEKIN—Four tablespoons grated cheese, one-half cup milk, two egg yolks, two tablespoons butter, one cup bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon mustard, three egg whites, cayenne pepper, salt. Beat and mix on to cook until smooth, then add cheese and butter. Stir on fire one minute; take off and add seasoning and egg yolks. Beat whites to stiff froth and stir in carefully. Put in baking dish and bake fifteen minutes in quick oven. Serve at once.

Suggestions Rules for Pie
An otherwise good pie is often ruined by poor baking. These rules will help you bake each type of pastry correctly.

Pie Shells—hot oven, 400 to 450 degrees F. for ten or twenty minutes, until brown. Half fill shell with dry uncooked rice to keep it from puffing up, or bake on bottom of pie pan and prick with a fork.

Double Crust, uncooked filling as fruit—hot oven (400 to 450 degrees F.) for 15 minutes, then reduce to moderate (350 to 400 degrees for twenty or thirty-five minutes longer, depending on thickness. With a cooked filling, twenty-five to thirty minutes altogether is usually enough.

Single crust, custard type, as custard, pumpkin, lemon, etc.—hot oven (400 to 450 degrees) for 15 minutes to set the filling, then reduce to moderate (350 degrees) for thirty to forty minutes longer until firm.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES—Boil potatoes until tender. Peel and cut in half. Place in shallow baking dish in one layer. Sprinkle with salt (and cayenne if desired), cover with brown sugar and dot generously with butter. Turn frequently while baking.

Important Trifles

Electric washers and ironers are injured by accumulations of dust. Yet it is impossible to keep them constantly free from dust, because they ordinarily are kept in the basement or some similar location where dust is all too prevalent. The best way to protect these appliances and lengthen their lives is to make a cover for each from heavy cretonne or muslin. These covers should be kept on the appliances throughout the time when they are not in use.

Diet and Health

Polypoid Growths

"DEAR DOCTOR: What causes polypoid growths, and what is the best treatment for them? Polypoids may seem very trivial to you, compared with the other seemingly more vital subjects which come up in your correspondence—but they seem quite important to me, because they have affected my voice. I really feel I am developing (or have developed) an inferiority complex because of them. As George Eliot said, 'Will not a tiny speck close to your vision blot out the glory of the world?'"

"I have a young baby and it would be rather difficult for me to go to a big city. Would you advise a small town doctor for my trouble?" MRS. B."

Polypoids are growths from the mucous membranes, and are especially common in the nose. They are pedunculated—that is, they have stems—and are the result of hypertrophy or over-growth of the mucous membranes and their connective tissues. Their cause is not exactly known, no more than the cause of other tumors is known. (Any new growth, not inflammatory, is called a tumor, so do not be frightened by this.)

We know that the over-growth of the adenoid tissue and the over-growth of the tonsils in children frequently can be charged to a prolonged wrong diet, often coupled with pacifier and thumb sucking. Sometimes the correction of the diet and the observance of fresh air, night and day, rest and other measures to promote health, will cause them to subside. I remember reading sometime ago in my medical literature of a number of children in a charity institution who, when

adenoids and hypertrophied tonsils. They were put on the operation list, but before their turn came, it was found the operation was not necessary. The correct diet and correct hygienic program under which they lived at the institution had apparently caused the conditions to subside. Now this must not be construed to mean that one should wait indefinitely for these growths to subside, for they will not in all cases, and the damage that is done to the health of the child by waiting too long, can be very appreciable.)

Whether the wrong diet can be the cause of hypertrophy of the mucous membranes in the adult, I do not know, but it is probable that it can, for it is known absolutely that the diet is deficient (especially in vitamin A) can markedly affect the mucous membranes. After polyp have occurred, though, there is no hope for their disappearance except through surgical removal, either by the cautery or snare, sometimes by a combination of both measures. If one growth is present, usually there are others.

If I were you, Mrs. B., I would go to your town doctor, and if he feels he cannot care for you, he will advise you to go to some nearby city where there are doctors who specialize in diseases of the nose and throat.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have by following column rules, which may help you, although, as I said before, you will have to have the inferiority complex. Just think of growths removed. Don't develop an inferiority complex. Just think of the much worse things you might have than these.

Mrs. W.—Our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women takes up the Menopause (change of life). See column rules for obtaining this.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Is handwriting and arithmetic important in this day of typewriters, and has the world any use for poets?

Following is the letter from the little girl who wants these momentous points cleared up:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am 14 and head of my class in spelling, English, history and geography, but I just can't learn arithmetic or pass the tests in penmanship. My aunt has a typewriter, and when I visit her she teaches me typing, and I can type 20 words a minute. But mother doesn't like me to type. She insists that I learn to write better by hand."

"And when I visit Auntie we play games together, and Auntie taught me how to write poetry, and mother doesn't like it. Mother says poets are a hair-brained lot who rarely amount to much, and that normal people can't abide them or live with them."

"And Auntie says mother is right, but that it is something to be glad about, as Auntie enjoys living alone with her cat. And she says the more she sees of normal women the more respect she has for her cat. "Auntie lives out of town, and she has a car and an orchard and chickens, and she says poets may be half-baked, but still get a kick out of life. Do you think I should go on studying poetry?" "PATSY."

There are times, Patsy, when one is glad they write a good hand and there are times when one needs a little arithmetic for the business of life which even a poet can't very well escape. Aside from that, people who write for a living, or even those who write a good many letters, nowadays, use typewriters, and their stuff is much easier to read than most even pretty good handwriting. So I think you can't go wrong in learning to type.

However, I'd try hard to shape your letters plainly, because it is nice, as I said, to be able to sign even your name, in a good round hand. Your writing is legible, anyway, and with a little attention to lines you will write very well.

Now, as to the poets, we need "normal people," as your mother

RUSTY: Yes, indeed, dear, girls of 16 often fall in love, very seriously, too, but it seldom lasts very long. They fall out again. The boy must have noticed you, or he wouldn't have taken the trouble to correct your language. Talk to him whenever you get a chance, and show him that you think a good deal of what he says. College girls say, you know, that there are just six words needed to make you popular. They are: "Do go on. You're just wonderful!"

MARVA ANN: I am sure your answer was printed some time ago. You must have missed that issue of the paper. I think it a great pity some one did not prevent you marrying such an old man, but now that you are married and your husband is good to you, I think you should be faithful to him.

Of what use would it be to correspond with the man you love, or think you do? He realizes you don't, that it would not be right for him to make love to a married woman. Why not respect his attitude?

Why think, feeling as you do, that it would be much better to even refrain from sending him a Christmas card. Most certainly do not send him your picture. I think he shows his sense in not writing.

Peter's Adventures

THE FOOLISH LITTLE TIGER GRUB

Gently Biffer pushed Mother Tiger Beetle's claw away.

"I'm sorry I sung out loud!" said he. "It was a silly thing for me to do. But he didn't hear me. Look, the man is crawling on the ground just like we do! I never knew humans went on all fours like that, boy!"

"We never do unless we are looking for something," said Peter, "and, of course, he is trying his best to find the Grub Tigers. I hope they will stay in their holes."

"Don't worry," said Biffer cheerfully. "He isn't going to find one of your babies, autie! He is giving up the hunt in despair. See, he is putting his back away in that big black thing that he is carrying. What is that thing, boy?"

"That is a bag," answered the boy.

"What's it for?" demanded Biffer.

"To carry things in," replied Peter. "You're right Biffer! The man is leaving, sure enough!"

"In a moment I can run to tell the children the coast is clear," shrilled Mother Beetle.

Alas and alack! One of the babies had become tired of waiting for his mother and, thinking that the danger was over, had poked his head up over the hole. Seeing nothing, decided to come out and stretch his legs. So out of his home he hopped and started off for a little walk. The man caught sight of him. Snatching his hat off his head, the man threw it at the young grub, and covered him completely.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS FRAMED by Phil

For the last two seasons Xenia Central High School has dominated the Miami Valley League in basketball, winning two consecutive league titles each year without the loss of a game, but for the coming season prospects are for a close, hard-fought struggle for the league basketball championship.

We will not venture to say that the Bucs will not again win the league title, but it will be more difficult. Xenia will miss Ralph Scurry forward and John Gibney at guard this year.

It is difficult to predict the outcome of the fight for the court title this time. Many games will probably be decided by a margin of one or two points and the six contending teams promise to provide their followers with a supply of thrills this season.

An unusual number of veterans will be found among the candidates for the league teams and experienced material is plentiful at all of the schools, particularly at Miami, which has its team intact from last season and should therefore be a formidable contender.

Xenia Central has its share of experienced material but Coach Wilson refuses to be overly enthusiastic about the prospects for retaining the league title. Joe Smittle will hold down a guard post, Birch Bell is probably a fixture at forward and lanky John Hurley, an understudy at center last season, should fill the bill at the tip-off station.

Price is one of the outstanding candidates for the remaining guard post while Michael may win himself a regular berth at the vacant forward position. This is all guess work, however, and it is still too early to get a line on the ability of the various candidates.

This column is greatly encouraged by the response to its appeal for reports on Class B high school basketball games being played every Friday night. Much to this department's surprise and much to its delight the reports of four double-header games played last Friday night were received bright and early the following morning and if this custom will only be continued throughout the season the county court team will not lack their proper recognition.

Bellbrook High School with a veteran team intact from last season, served notice Friday night that it is going places in county cage circles this season, despite a previous unlooked for defeat at the hands of Jamestown. Bellbrook scored a five-point victory over Spring Valley High, 1925-29 county champs.

They also say that Cedarville has a championship quintet in the making this fall. Coach Baker has a bunch of players better than six feet in height and a rangy team like that should be hard to beat.

One Cedarville lad in particular is touted as probably the best all-around player in county circles. He is Bates, playing a running guard position, who may lead the county teams in scoring. Against Pithin Bates tallied seventeen points.

Bowling Scores.

The Red Wing Co. is entrenched, but none too firmly, in first place in the Recreation Bowling League, while the Downtown Country Club is still the pace-setter for City League teams.

Schedule for this week follows: Monday at 7:30 p. m.—Gr. Co. L. Co. vs. Arch-O-Pedic Shoes; Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.—Red Wing Co. vs. Buick; Thursday at 7 p. m.—Flexnode Shoes vs. D. T. C. Club; Thursday at 9 p. m.—Lang Chevrolet Co. vs. Benrus Watch; Friday at 7 p. m.—H. and A. vs. Beckett Auto Co.; Friday at 9 p. m.—American Legion vs. Fuller and Sons.

Following is the Recreation League standing: Team. Won. Lost. Pct. Red Wing Co. .... 25 14 .641 Gr. Co. L. Co. .... 22 4 .811 Benrus Watch .... 20 17 .554 Buick .... 20 19 .512 Lang Chevrolet .... 13 23 .361 Arch-O-Pedic .... 12 27 .307

When "Terrible Football" Throttled Albie Booth

Sports Editor King Feature Service

SOME of those who analyze football insist that Yale's defeat by Harvard in their 1929 gridiron duel was due mainly to the fact that both the Yale line and backs gave little or no protection to Albie Booth, the star of the Blue eleven.

And they submit the extraordinary picture above as definite evidence that at least on one play, after Booth dropped back to kick, his supporting caste suddenly found about everything else to do except to protect him so that the punt might be successful. Albie's effort was blocked of course. It was made in that poignant second period when all the scoring was done—Harvard winning 10-6.

The Yale athletes wore white helmets in that game. Look for the white helmeted fellows who were supposed to protect Booth. Then look at little Booth in person, as he is trying to make a kick that was blocked. Gaze upon these six Harvard men that had him surrounded.

Look at the three Yale backs actually running away from Booth! Look at the Yale ends—and the rest of the Yale line. All of them trying to get down the field to get under the punt that never was made.

This picture illustrates better than any that ever was made on a football field the something that is called "terrible football." For the Yale team was so concentrated on getting down that it left Booth a prey to six Harvard men.

SCORING LEADERS OF THE EAST

Clark Hinkle, right, Bucknell fullback, leads eastern collegiate scorers with a total of 128 points, the result of 21 touchdowns and two points after touchdowns. Alton Marsters, Dartmouth's star quarterback, is next with 108 points, scored in six games, with a total of 108 points.

CENTRAL BASKETEERS TO PLAY WAYNESVILLE HERE ON FRIDAY

Four days remain for Xenia Central High's court squad to complete its preparations for the inaugural game of the season against Wayneville High at the local gym Friday night.

The squad was cut last week by Coach Wilson, who is beginning to gain a definite idea of the capabilities of his candidates.

Announcement is made that Bill

Cox, Ohio State, will referee the opening game.

The seating capacity of the gym on the ground floor has again been increased by the installation of a second row of twenty-seven seats on the east side.

Recently a second row was placed on the west side, making it necessary to reduce the width of the playing floor. A few inches were taken off each side of the court, providing room for installing another row on the opposite side of the gym as well.

Sale of season tickets is progressing satisfactorily but nearly 125 lower seats are still available, school officials disclose. Adult season tickets for the lower floor cost $3 and adult tickets for the balcony are priced at $2. Student season tickets are being sold for $1.50.

Merchants are also expected to discuss plans for decorating the business section of the city for the Christmas holidays. It is considered likely that lighted Christmas trees will be installed in front of stores earlier than usual this year and that arrangements will be made to bring Santa Claus to the city.

Appointment of a committee to nominate a slate of officers for the coming year is expected to be made at a banquet-meeting of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association at 6:15 o'clock Wednesday night at the Elk's Club.

WILLIAMS FAMILY YIELDS OFFICE

Miss Eleanor Williams Retires As Postal Manager Here

TERMINATING many years of service in that capacity, Miss Eleanor A. Williams retired Monday as local manager of The Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., which maintains an office at 4 W. Main St., in the J. D.
Steele Bldg.

Miss Williams, whose resignation was accepted with reluctance by company officials, has been succeeded as manager by Hubert Spears, Ashland, Ky., who entered upon his new duties Monday morning.

A member of the Williams family had been in charge of the local telegraph office ever since the Xenia branch was established here more than forty years ago. The office was originally opened by the late
J. S. Williams, father of Miss Eleanor, as a local branch of the United Lines Telegraph
Co., which later became the Postal Telegraph-Cable Co.

Mr. Williams was later succeeded as manager by his son, Samuel, and Miss Williams eventually replaced her brother.

Recent celebration of the Golden Jubilee of the incandescent light at Detroit, Mich., was of special significance to Miss Williams, whose father during his lifetime was a close friend of Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor.

During the early part of Edison's career when he was employed as a telegraph operator Mr. Williams and the inventor roomed together at Cincinnati and Indianapolis.
Mr. Williams often visited
would return to his birthplace

VALUABLE ANTIQUES SAVED FROM FLAMES

Valuable antique furniture and bedding which had been advertised for a sale Thursday, December 12 were saved with the assistance of neighbors when fire, attributed to a defective flue, caused damage estimated at several hundred dollars at the farm home of Clifford Bull, one mile south of Cedarville, last week. The blaze was confined to the attic and roof. Mr. Bull is a descendant of one of the earliest settlers in that vicinity and many of the antiques in his possession date back to the Revolutionary War period.

CORN AND WHEAT CROPS BE- LOW OHIO AVERAGE

The corn and wheat crops this year were each 10 per cent below the five-year average for Ohio, according to J. I. Falconer, chief of the department of rural economies of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

For all crops the year 1929 was much more satisfactory to Ohio farmers than either of the two preceding years. The composite yield of all Ohio crops for 1929 was 99.4 per cent of the ten year average, while that of the United States as a whole was 97.4 per cent.

The Ohio hay crop was 15 per cent above the five-year average, according to Dr. Falconer's estimates. Potatoes were 5 per cent above, and tobacco nearly the same. Clover seed, which has averaged 1.1 bushels per acre for the last ten years, is reported as yielding 1.6 bushels this year.

Prices with a few notable exceptions such as potatoes and apples were no better than the prices of last year. Wholesale prices of all commodities in the United States for October were 151.2 points below the rating for October 1928.
Ohio farm products prices for October this year were 151, three points below the same month last year and the average for last year.

SERVICE SCHOOL

TRAINING URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The high percentage of failures made by Ohio youths seeking to enter West Point and Annapolis is expected to be materially reduced as the result of efforts by Rep. Chester C. Bolton to have high schools provide special training.

Bolton announced that he had been advised by superintendent of Cleveland schools, R. G. Jones, that special opportunities will be provided in Cleveland schools for students who are anxious to enter either the naval or military academy. The courses will emphasize the mathematical and scientific subjects stressed in the entrance examinations of the two academies.

Realization that Ohio youths were handicapped by lack of sufficient special training came to Bolton last spring when all twelve students he said he selected for appointment to the two academies failed. Inquiries directed at other Ohio congressmen revealed that the percentage of scholastic failures was high throughout the state.

Rowdy, at work on the murder mystery, goes to Rosalie's former room. While he is trying to think of a plan he hears someone climbing in the window.

It is Tim, who tells Rowdy he shot Martino and has returned to find the gun he threw down.

CHAPTER XLIII

Rosalie was free. As swiftly as the machinery of the law had moved to put her in the Moyamensing prison it had moved to give her liberty.

Through Rowdy's influence with official Philadelphia it was only a matter of hours until she was released and had been spirited away to a room at the Hotel Van Kirk, where she might hide from curious eyes and rest from her bitter ordeal.

But freedom was not sweet. Tim had sacrificed himself for her and always in her heart was the cruel realization that it was her own wrong that had brought all this unhappiness and grief, and perhaps death to the one she loved most in the world—Roy.

They were true—all the things she had been taught. That when you do something wrong you pay for it. The agony in her heart was as great as any hell her mother had ever taught her to believe in. And yet, she hadn't really meant to be a thief.

She lay on the bed in her room with the afternoon papers that Rowdy had brought scattered around her.

"ROSALIE MARCH IN HIDING." "NEWSBOY, 14, MURDERED MARTINO." "GIRL FREED IN 'HATE MURDER'."

Poor little Tim. There were pictures of him signing his confession. Of his father and mother and his brothers and sisters. One of his mother weeping and being taken to the police station for questioning.

Rosalie buried her face in her hands and wanted to die. She would have to tell about Roy soon. Only the warning she had received in the prison kept her from it. There was a slim chance that Roy was alive. She must give him time to escape from his captors. If she told her part of the story and they killed him she would feel she had murdered him.

At every little sound she jumped and sat up, scarcely daring to breathe. Perhaps they would find out where she was and come and kidnap her, too. But Rowdy had assured her that no harm could come.

She did not know that a city detective had a connecting room, locked on the other side—and that she was being watched every minute. It was for her protection—as well as for the fact that she was needed as a witness and was really not nearly as free as she thought she was. There was still a great deal of skepticism in the police department. Something, they were certain, was wrong somewhere. There was a great deal back of the murder that they were unable to fathom.

The Philadelphia Tribune was shrieking with exclusive stories in the Martino murder.

Rowdy, still under cover, was phoning his stuff in to the city desk. Shannon sat back, contented and in clover watching things hum. He had known Rowdy Dow would start things popping.

If he had known how much Rowdy knew that he hadn't told—the squelching of the truth of the story would have broken his heart. On the front page was a picture of Rowdy and the story of how he had uncovered the real murderer of the Boggs and Clarke detective. It promised greater surprises to come.

The other reporters were mystified. Where had Rowdy been? They hadn't even seen him around town for a week. They did not know that the tall, black-haired "lawyer" they had seen frequently around the jail was Rowdy. Only a few trustworthy officials had been let in on the secret. They were highly amused.

Rowdy had kept his promise to Rosalie. He had told nothing that she had told him. All that he had written he had found out for himself. And it was all beneficial, rather than harmful to her.

She trusted him with all her heart. He had saved her. There had never been anyone so good as he had been—except Tim.

She wondered if Neil had heard of her trouble. Of course he had. But he had not written to say he was sorry. Not one person in Rendale had come to her assistance—except Kenessa. And they had called her a "burlesque tramp."

Now she would be an outcast from the little town where she had been born and raised. She knew they could never bring themselves to forgive a girl who had gone to "the city" and "turned out wrong."

How many dozens of times she had heard them repeat stories of girls who had left Rendale and everyone had been sure they had gone "for no good." Her mother had really been one of the first to condemn them.

Rosalie fell to thinking of her poor little mother. She was glad she had died before all this dreadful trouble came to her. It would have killed her, anyway. But—would her mother have stood by her and helped her if she thought she had sinned? Elizabeth March had been a very self-righteous woman.

No. She didn't believe anyone could understand. Except, of course, people like Rowdy and Kenessa who knew all about the world and how different it could be from home and where you were brought up.

What would become of her if Roy was dead? She would have to go on living, she supposed. But she didn't see how she possibly could with the burden of uncertainty hanging over her. There was nothing to do in the lonely big hotel room but think. She felt she would go mad if something did not happen to relieve the strain.

Little did Rosalie realize how quickly things were coming to a climax. She felt everything had happened that could possibly happen. But later it was to seem as though they hadn't begun to happen.

Ann Schultz could keep still no longer. She had to tell what she knew.

COTTON STOCKINGS

ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY Author of THE FLAT TIRE Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST: Rosalie March, seventeen, after the death of her mother, secures a position at the hosiery counter of a store. She is helped by Kenessa DuBarry, an actress, who has a soft heart. Rosalie is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, corner newsie. Rosalie takes a pair of silk stockings until payday, and is observed by Alberto, a hard-boiled store detective. He does not arrest her, but threatens to unless she hides some suitcases in her room. Rosalie is frightened, and when Martino's gang kidnaps Roy Andrews, nephew of the store owner, who has asked Rosalie to marry him, she threatens to expose Martino. Martino is furious, and in a scuffle is shot mysteriously. Rosalie is arrested, and Tim O'Hara confesses that he shot Martino to protect Rosalie, but the police do not believe him. Rowdy Dow, police reporter, and Kenessa DuBarry decide to help Rosalie.

Rowdy, at work on the murder mystery, goes to Rosalie's former room. While he is trying to think of a plan he hears someone climbing in the window.

It is Tim, who tells Rowdy he shot Martino and has returned to find the gun he threw down.

The Theater

Theodosia Goodman, who, more than twenty years ago, attired herself in prim white dresses and attended Sunday School in Avondale, Cincinnati, is coming back to the city of her childhood.

She is coming to Cincinnati December 14 in vaudeville but she will be acclaimed by present-day Cincinnati as Theda Bara, one-time renowned vampire of the motion pictures.

Friends of Theodosia Goodman remember her when she left Cincinnati twenty years ago but were surprised shortly afterward to learn that she was the girl using the name of Theda Bara who was becoming so successful on the screen.

Theda Bara began her motion picture career at the time that press-agenting in the modern manner, was just becoming prevalent.

No, this is not an advertisement for Dr. Hoozis' toothpaste. It is the latest photograph of Marjorie White, lately of the stage, now of the movies, taken in a happy mood.

A word that had become obsolete in the language, was revived to describe her peculiar talents of allurements and "vampire" became a popular byword among movie fans. Miss Bara's interpretation of "vampire" roles started a school of portrayal that brought many converts, among the most important being Louise Glaum. But Miss Bara retained the leadership of "vampire" class. Her success was of the heaving-breast, eye-rolling school—not near so subtle as the present mode of screen allures, who leave more to the imagination. Theda finds her manner of expression of the siren type much more honest than the present type, and really and inspiration for good. She says the modern screen siren tempts with the real vampirish live masked in innocence, while type she expressed, at least gave a warning of the result to the innocent victim.

A clever press agent made public a story that a well-known Brummel of blue blood had killed himself because of love of her, and the word "vampire" instantly became a part of the English language again. She rose to the peak of her profession and even had the opportunity to play Juliet in the Shakespearean classic "Romeo and Juliet." She gave an able interpretation of the part.

Miss Bara's marriage to Charles Brabin, one of the better directors, fin, publisher of The Tiffin Tribune, Rep. R. D. Williamson, Greene County, member of the house finance committee, and Rep. Charles Jones, Jackson County, Rep. Jones was the only member who was unable to attend Saturday's meeting.

Also present at the meeting were Kahrl Bull, publisher of the Cedarville Herald, president of the Ohio Newspaper Association; Dr. W. A. Galloway, representing the Greene County Historical Society; C. B. Galbreath, secretary of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, Harry R. McPherson, business agent of the society, and Horace Ankeney, Beaver Creek Twp.

Maxwell's death occurred in 1899 and his grave for a long time was supposed to be located on the old Maxwell farm, about one and one-half miles southeast of Alpha. The burial spot is not definitely known, however, and a committee of newspaper publishers has been attempting to definitely locate the spot.

Members of the memorial committee inspected the site near Alpha Saturday. It is known that the publisher was buried on his farm but eventually the grave location was lost and the memory of his name vanished for a time.

More than twenty years ago Mr. Galbreath, then state librarian, a man thoroughly versed in state history, began a search for the grave. His search took him to Greene County and on a farm now owned by J. D. Steele, Xenia, originally the old Maxwell farm and located on a back road off the Valley Pike in Beaver Creek Twp., the grave was supposed to have been located. A rough stone marker was set and Galbreath took two camera views of the spot and the old log cabin Maxwell home.

Definite plans for re-locating and marking the grave took expression a few months ago when a resolution was introduced in the legislature by Rep. H. E. Crowe, Holmes County, field representative of the Ohio Newspaper Association, providing for purchase of a site and erection of a memorial to the publisher.

The resolution originally carried an appropriation of $1,000 to defray expenses of the committee but this amount was later cut to $500. Believing that $500 is not sufficient to finance the project, the committee may defer any action until the next session of the legislature, when an additional appropriation may be sought.

It is the belief of the committee, expressed Saturday, that inasmuch as the grave has not been and may never be definitely located, it would be more satisfactory if a site could be acquired and a memorial erected at a location in Beav-seen more easily. Maxwell brought the first printing press into the Northwest Territory from New York and established in a log cabin the first newspaper, "The Centinel of the Northwest Territory," which paper has been in continual existence, now being known as The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. The original publication was printed on half sheet royal quarto size paper.

Later Maxwell printed the first book in this territory, was the first postmaster of Cincinnati and a member of the first house of representatives which met in Chillicothe March 1, 1803. In 1799 the pioneer newspaper and book publisher moved to a farm in Greene County where he ended his days.

BRITISH CRUISERS SENT TO SHANGHAI; NANKING ATTACKED

barrage is being laid down by the rebels with government troops already beginning to retreat as the upsurge against the rule of President Chiang Kai Shek continues.

In the provinces of Honan, Hupeh, Anwei, Kiangsi and Canton, similar conditions exist.

According to reports, the Nationalists have been put on the defensive almost everywhere, their numbers depleted by mutinies and desertions.

Chiang still claims the rebellions in the five areas are under control but reports received here indicate that the Nationalist leader will have to perform military and political miracles to emerge from the present crisis still holding the reins of government.

He has refused demands of rebel leaders that he resign immediately in favor of General Chang Wei, former Nationalist president.

In order to reinforce the Nanking area, and to attempt to recapture the strategically important city of Chang Chow, Chiang has been forced to withdraw 30,000 troops from Hankow, leaving that section virtually free to the inroads of the rebels.

Fifteen thousand Nationalist troops in the garrison at Chang Chow revolted Saturday, looting the city, severing railroad and telegraph communications between Tientsin and Shanghai, and making away with $75,000 belonging to the chamber of commerce.

The 30,000 Cantonese troops defending Canton against the Kuomintang and "Ironsides" rebel armies now pressing them on two sides, are fighting valiantly but being steadily forced back, according to reports received here.

Nationalist airplanes are being sent over the rebel lines dropping propaganda leaflets offering rebel leader General Chang Fahn-kwei.

Shaohai, according to reports here, is quiet. Five thousand Nationalist troops are patrolling the native part of the city. The foreign authorities are watching the situation closely in the concessions and are ready to provide adequate defense of their part of the city in the event of trouble.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—President Chiang Kai Shek today advised the Nationalist Chinese legation here that the rebellion in China was not as serious as it has been painted and he had the situation well in hand.

At the same time, he made known through the legation, that the Nanking government had approved the preliminary agreement reached by the Soviet and Mukden delegates on the settlement of the Sino-Russ controversy in Manchuria.

Nationalist reinforcements bringing the total strength of the forces defending Nanking up to 50,000 men have arrived, according to dispatches received by evening papers here.

Earlier dispatches stated the rebels were laying down a heavy barrage on the defending forces and forcing them to retreat.

The same dispatches stated seventy-five British and American women and children residents of

AUTO DRIVER FINED AFTER ACCIDENT

A fine of $100 and costs, sentence of thirty days in the County Jail and suspension of his driving rights for six months was the penalty imposed by Probate Judge S. C. Wright upon Houston Baldrige, Dayton, when he entered a guilty plea to a charge of driving an auto while intoxicated Monday morning.

Baldrige was arrested Saturday night by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, after his auto is alleged to have crashed into two other machines on the Dayton Pike, near Knollwood.

Authorities say that Baldrige, driving toward Xenia, hit an auto being driven in the same direction by Frank Morris, Trumbull St., Xenia, and also collided with a machine driven toward Dayton by T. O. Trehaner, Darke Ave., Dayton, son of Dr. T. W. Trehaner, Zimmerman.

AUTOIST ARRESTED

Charles Ellison, arrested Saturday night by Patrolman J. E. Craig, is being held at Police Headquarters pending arraignment before Mayor Karl R. Babb on a probable charge of intoxication. Police are investigating a report that an auto, admittedly owned by Ellison, caused two minor auto accidents Saturday in which no one was injured. Ellison denied, however, being the driver of the car.

GOOD CROWS

Henrietta Winkler, of Joliet, Ill., writes me such an interesting letter about crows that I wish I could include all of it here. I'll give you as much of it as space conditions will permit:

"My first crow was raised from a pinfeather. I fed it bread and milk from a spoon until it was able to feed itself, and then table scraps of any sort were welcome. I named this crow Tom.

"About two years later I acquired a full grown crow from a man who wanted a good home for Germany. This crow's name was Jacob.

"Tom was of a very gentle disposition, loving and sweet-tempered. His face was sweet and placid, his eyes gentle and confident. The character of a crow is just as apparent in its face as human character is in the face of a human being.

"But Jacob! Villainous, impudent, with a countenance suggesting subterranean passages and dark deeds. Malevolent eyes, gleaming mockingly. And yet I loved him for his very wickedness, even as I loved Tom for his sweetness.

"Both were affectionate, although Tom was more loving to Jacob than Jacob to Tom. They were jealous of one another, and when they were being coddled they would jostle each other and pull each other's tails.

"There was little mischief in Tom. Plenty in Jacob. We had one peony bush with one lone bud, just about to burst into bloom.

Jacob eyed it thoughtfully. I spoke to him gently, and said, 'Now, Jacob, that is the first bud we have ever had on that peony, so you mustn't pick it off. A look of comprehension flashed into his eyes, and with a vicious snap he was upon the unprotected blossom.

I spent three futile hours chasing him away from that peony, showering maledictions upon his shiny mine, and the peony as his. The self-satisfied smirk he wore the rest of the day was absolutely maddening.

"Jacob was my dad's inseparable companion in the garden, picking bugs and worms off plants, and yes, even pulling up weeds. How he knew the difference between a weed and a vegetable I don't know, but I never saw him pull up a vegetable. He did have a weakness for snipping off bright blossoms and for picking little green pyramids. When reprimanded, he would make twice as many pyramids. I think the damages were more than compensated for by the extermination of insects."

Maybe I can find room for some other day. And I have several other excellent letters about crows. I'm beginning to think that the crow is about the most intelligent bird on the earth or in the air.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, (adv.)
